

this is a tale of two cities

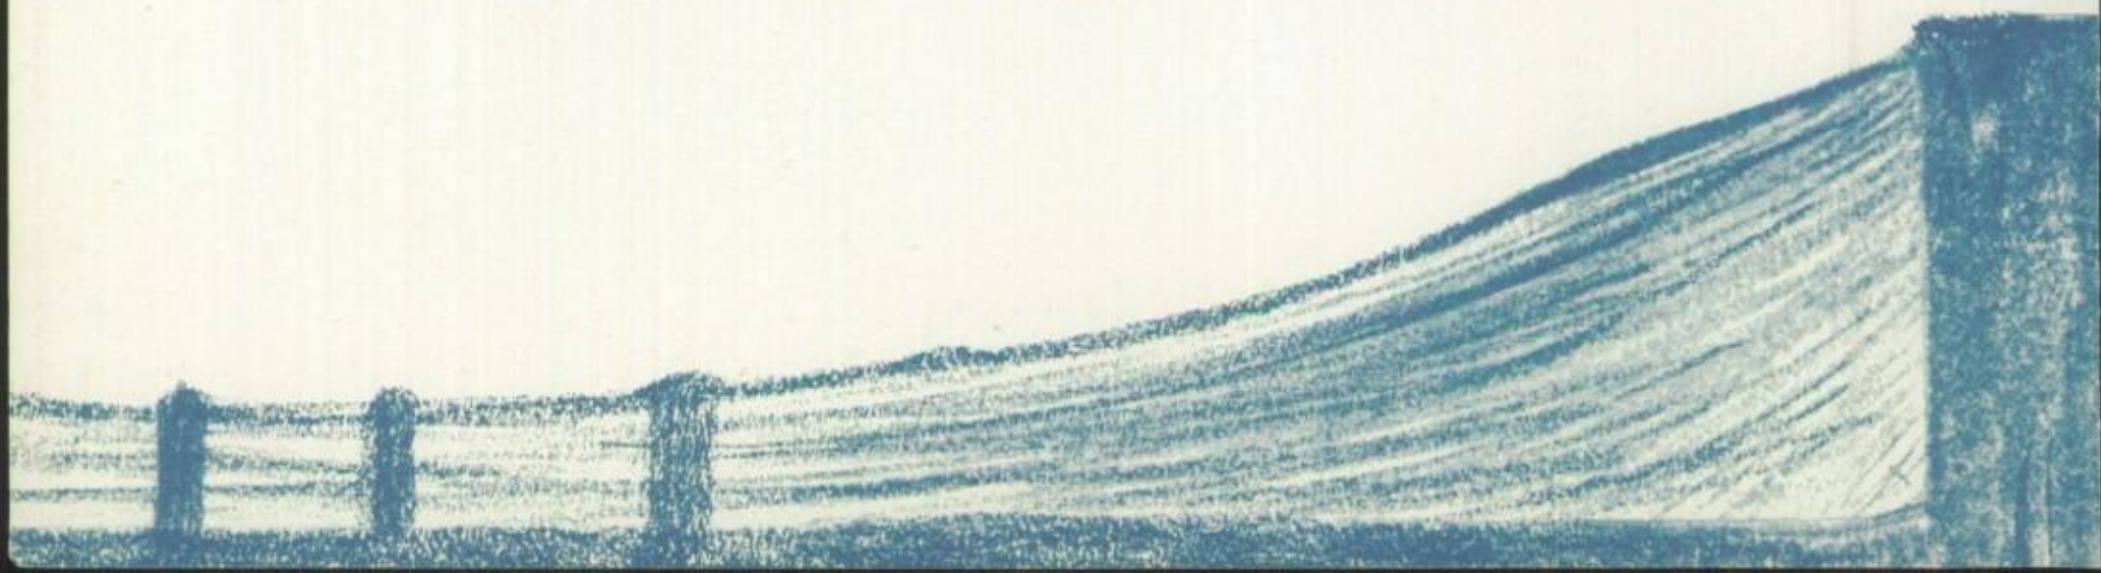

THE CITY OF GOD

"Peace between man and God is the well-ordered obedience of faith to eternal law" . . . the understanding of this distinction between the separate duties owed to God and to man which is so necessary today in the bustle of modern living, is an essential basis on which to build the framework of a complete personality. Because it is especially important for a Catholic high school student, we, the graduates, have chosen this as the theme of our 1956 PARMENTIER.

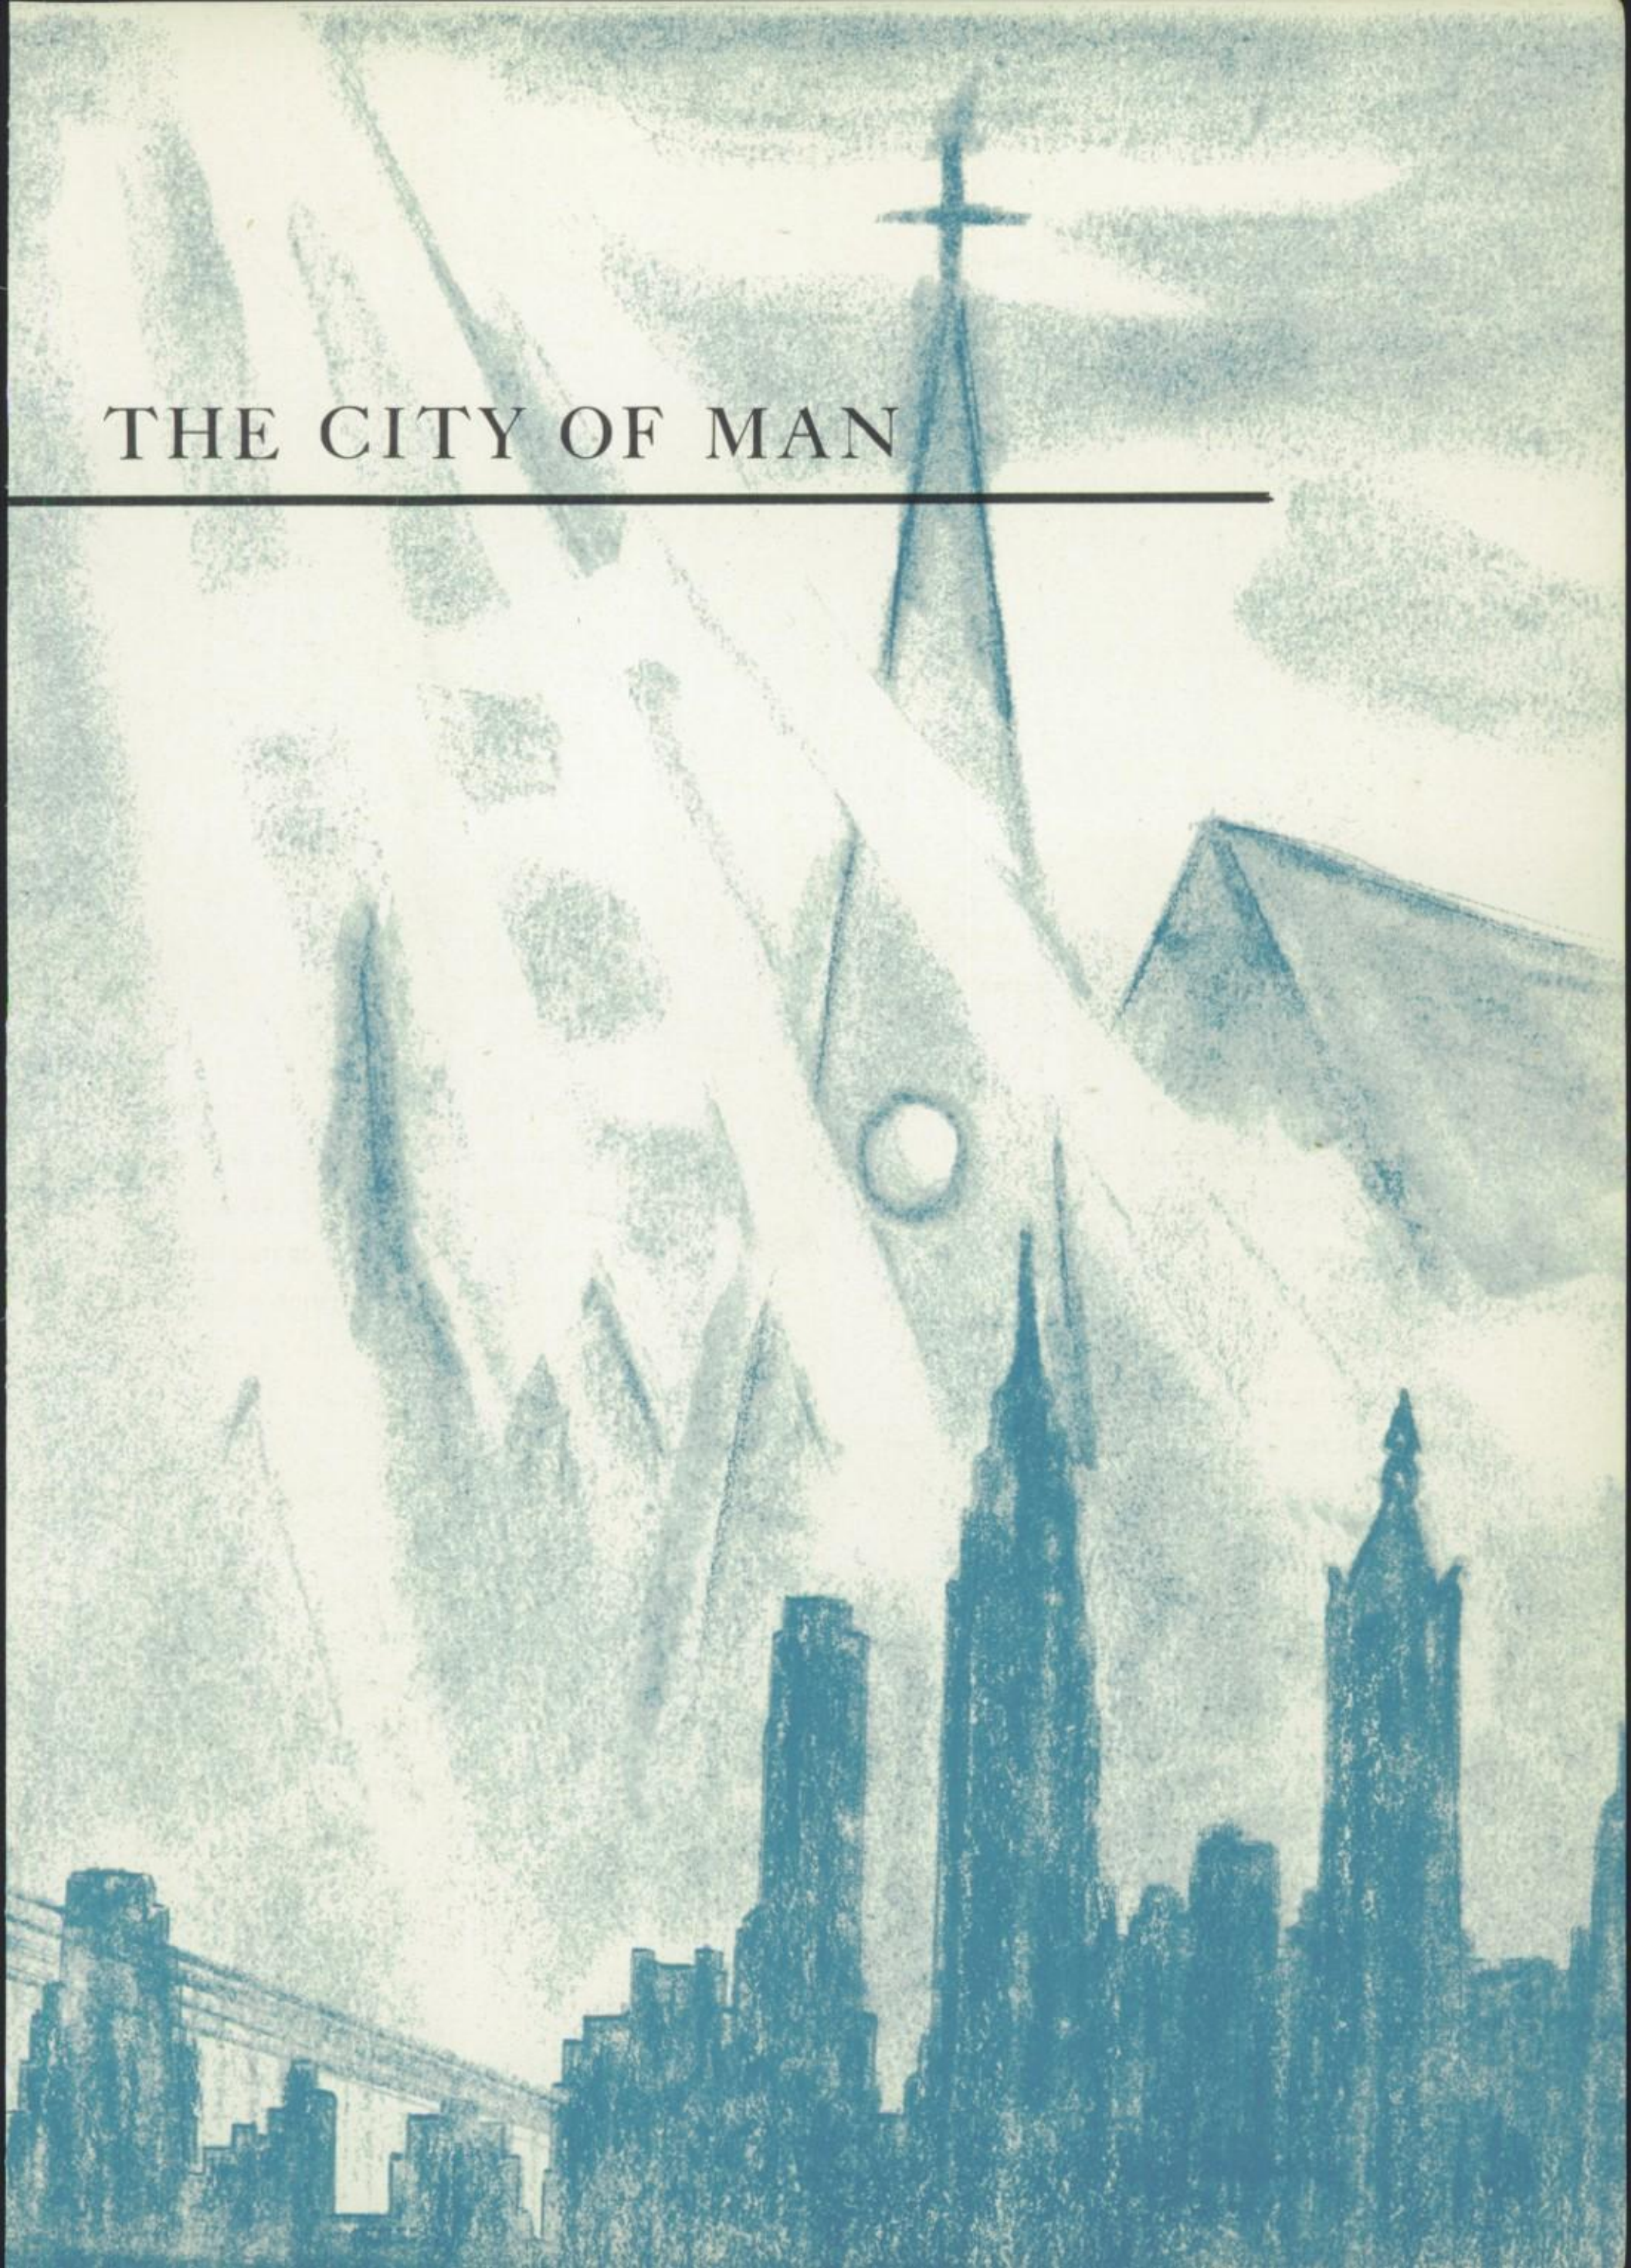

Throughout our four years in high school we have been educated in principles combining both heavenly and earthly responsibilities, and now realize the importance of carrying these principles with us to the business houses, schools of higher learning, and homes of the world. In learning this distinction between the things to be rendered to Caesar and to God, it is plainly seen that the duty to one relies on the other, for we cannot fulfill our responsibility to the world without a knowledge of the ways of God, and we cannot think of love of God alone, unless we respect the rights of mankind.

Endeavoring to show how these principles have been instilled in us at St. Joseph's, and how they shall be maintained in the future, we have planned our book as an example of what we are prepared to offer as our contributions, both to the city of God, and to the city of man. Upon this thesis we based our story, and tell it now—our tale of two cities.

THE CITY OF MAN

DEDICATION

"It was the best of times . . . it was the age of wisdom . . . it was the epoch of belief . . . it was the season of light . . . it was the spring of hope . . . we had everything before us . . . we were all going direct to Heaven . . ."

from "A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

It was the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty six. Sister M. Austin Kean and her two companions were traveling the long road from the Philadelphia motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Joseph toward new horizons in the young Diocese of Brooklyn. Little did these Sisters realize that they would be the nucleus of a Congregation which now is such a tremendous moral force in Brooklyn. This year, celebrating the centenary of their coming here, the Sisters of St. Joseph claim as their own, 65 elementary schools, 13 high schools, a liberal arts college, a Teacher's College for members of their novitiate, mission schools in Puerto Rico, and administrators' and professors' chairs in the Catholic University of Puerto Rico.

To these stalwart women who have evoked in us a desire to attain to the city of God, we dedicate our 1956 PARMENTIER. As architects of a Christian civilization, they had the faith and foresight to stress the value of the spiritual before the mental or physical. Their work and sacrifices are the cornerstone of our city; their prayer and guidance are the strength and fortitude of us as citizens of this city.

In dedicating our yearbook to them we wish to manifest our appreciation of both their spiritual and temporal guidance. These pages will unfold the story of the Sisters' work at St. Joseph's, but a more personal account of them will remain forever with every graduate, wherever she may be, until, seeking admittance into the city of God, she will be proud to present her hallmark — "Josephite."

The children at the mission school near the city of Ponce, Puerto Rico, smile as Sister Maria Camillus adjusts a Girl Scout uniform on one of the girls. Under the direction of Mother Mary Louis, the first missionary band of Sisters of St. Joseph was sent to Puerto Rico in 1916.

A Sister-nurse assists two interns in caring for an injured patient at St. John's Hospital in Long Island City. All members of this staff have had intensive training in the various fields of medicine. Beside the spiritual and mental welfare of man, the physical care of God's creatures is another outstanding concern of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Sister Muriel Perpetua instructs a class here in St. Joseph's, which is only one of the 78 grammar and high schools in the diocese of Brooklyn which the Sisters of St. Joseph claim as their own. Their most widely acknowledged work is their role as the educators of the diocese.

Sister Alice Francis, a teacher at St. Joseph's Nursery School, instructs two boys in boat building with blocks while Miss Suzanne Todd, a student-teacher from St. Joseph's College for Women assists her. Training the pre-school child socially and educationally is another important phase of the work of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Joseph has its scenic location in Brentwood, Long Island. Situated on the grounds are the Academy of St. Joseph, a boarding school for grammar and high school girls; the Sacred Heart Chapel; St. Joseph's Convent; and the new Novitiate and College for candidates of the Community.

His Excellency, Archbishop Thomas E. Molloy, S. T. D.

During his Excellency's thirty-four years as Bishop of Brooklyn, Archbishop Molloy has always shown a gracious interest in the educational needs of the diocese. As a foremost Catholic educator, he has eagerly fostered the growth and expansion of our vast school system. In keeping with the trend of modern times, the Archbishop realizes the need for well-trained and alert Catholic students to defend the faith, and carry it to even greater heights of success. The expansion program now under way here at St. Joseph's is a definite step in the direction of a better world through Catholic education and toward the fulfillment of his Excellency's hopes.

Reverend Mother Charles Edward, C. S. J.

Reverend Mother Charles Edward, Superior of the Sisters of Saint Joseph, deserves a grateful remembrance in the prayers of every student of St. Joseph's. Reverend Mother has told us many times how dear St. Joseph's has always been to her, and how important a phase of work to her beloved Community. It is our privilege as centenary year graduates to offer to Reverend Mother and to all the Sisters of St. Joseph our sincere congratulations on their hundred years in this wonderful diocese. We are proud to be a part of their achievement, both in the monuments they have erected in this city, and in their building toward the city of God.

"He shall build a house to My Name"

II Kings 7-13

This mansion which was donated to the Sisters of St. Joseph by the Parmentier family, became the home of the school in 1908. It remained so until the present ten story building at 382 Bridge Street was purchased. In 1955, the Parmentier building once again became a part of St. Joseph's Commercial High School, and the home of eight freshman classes.

With the demand for women in the business world ever increasing, the necessity is becoming more pressing for more classroom space to accommodate the hundreds of girls who seek admission each semester. In order to provide such space, the two new buildings, one facing on Lawrence Street and the other on Bridge Street, additions to the ten story main building, were opened for the occupancy of the eleven new classes of freshmen admitted in September. By the beginning of the February term the two buildings housed the entire first year of 529 girls.

The Parmentier Building, at 342 Bridge Street, has had a long standing association with St. Joseph's Commercial High School. In 1908 the Parmentier family willed the property to the Sisters of St. Joseph for the purpose of establishing "a school for girls who would go into the business world." After the present main building was acquired, it became a preparatory academy for prospective candidates of the Community of the Sisters of St. Joseph. It so remained until this year, when it again became a significant part in the growth and expansion of St. Joseph's. Adjoining the Sisters' convent on one side, and the Lawrence Street extension on the other, the building contains eight classrooms, a library, and has a spacious yard for the students' recreation in warm weather.

The Mother Charles Edward Extension on Lawrence Street, formerly the Willoughby Settlement House, was blessed on February 14, 1955, by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Paul J. Faustman. During the ceremony a statue of St. Joseph was placed on a pedestal inside the main entrance of the school. The four story building contains seven classrooms, principal's office, faculty room, four students' rooms, cafeteria, and science laboratory. After the building was purchased, it underwent a complete renovation. New fluorescent lighting fixtures and modern plumbing facilities were installed. Each classroom is completely new, and has large windows for health and comfort.

In the ever growing cities of man, it is necessary for educational institutions also to grow in order to accommodate the increased numbers seeking admittance to their classrooms. This is especially so at St. Joseph's because of its high standard in the commercial world, but more so because it is a Catholic school, where its students are prepared to face the duties and responsibilities to the cities of man without forsaking their primary duty, to the City of God.

Another building, which is situated directly behind the Parmentier building on Lawrence Street was also purchased by our Reverend Principal. As a special tribute to Reverend Mother Charles Edward, Superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph, the building was named in her honor.

The annual freshman Mother and Daughter Communion Breakfast, which was held for the first time in the new cafeteria connecting the Parmentier Building and the Mother Charles Edward Extension, was interrupted for a moment by Mrs. T. Fraeulin, president of the Mother's Auxiliary, as she welcomed them to the school. The cafeteria is equipped to accommodate the students of both buildings daily during the three lunch periods. It is furnished with all modern facilities, including new fluorescent lighting fixtures.

ADMINISTRATION

Sister Anna Eugene will have completed with the end of this semester her term of six years as religious superior and school principal at St. Joseph's High School. It is with pardonable pride that she can look backwards over this period and calculate its effects.

Not least among the notable events of Sister's term are the Golden Jubilee Celebration in 1954, and in 1955, the acquisition of two new buildings which provided for an expansion of the enrollment to nearly 1650 students.

Working closely with Sister Anna Eugene, the Heads of Departments give serious attention to the selection and distribution of books in their respective fields, the regulation and administration of examinations, and the enforcement of the requirements of the syllabus together with necessary adjustments with the approbation of the Diocesan Superintendent and his office.

SENIORS

"You are the light of the world. A city set on a mountain cannot be hidden."

Matt. III:14

The pioneer Sisters of St. Joseph who found Brooklyn an educational wilderness, innocent of modern buildings, methods and pedagogical paraphernalia could scarcely have envisioned the ten story structure which is St. Joseph's present main building. Could they have seen into the future, their reaction could have been one of no greater wonder than was ours when four years ago as wide-eyed freshmen we entered the marble entrance hall, stepped into a high-pressure elevator and were whisked up to our 1A classrooms on the sixth floor.

That first day we were like so many Alices in a strange land, bemused by the brisk, methodical, business-like unfolding of events. By dismissal time, we had caught the general idea that we stayed in the same classroom for all lessons while the teachers came to us (all except Biology Lab, Music, Library Science and lunch); that Sister Miriam Augusta would be our grade adviser and counsellor through the four years; that the location of the administration office and the principal's office (the sound of the latter made us slightly nervous) was on the second floor; that the date of the first holiday was October twelfth.

Then before we even realized it, the Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior years had breezed by, the building with its modern equipment was no longer a wonder, and algebra, geometry, Spanish and biology had become things of the past. Then one day we looked at a calendar and we were Seniors. The Senior year too, passed quickly with all its magic and feeling of superiority. The day of the Ring Blessing enrolled us in a select society—

Seniordom. All too soon, the night of the Senior Dance arrived and was gone with all the sparkle and glitter of the best Christmas week of our lives. That night of dancing and gaiety will never be forgotten.

Another highlight of the year was Senior Day, which had its parties, and the night which was marked by the Faculty Dinner. We then began to realize that all too quickly we would be leaving our beloved Alma Mater.

The last days were exciting and confusing. The graduation Mass at St. Boniface Church, the traditional Communion Breakfast, and the thought of Commencement itself, brought back serenity.

The Senior year had a few sad notes intermingled with our joy, though. The term was scarcely a month old when one of our group, Gloria Alvarez, was stricken with a serious illness. The second half, (so near graduation!) saw Ellen Motley likewise stricken. Both wonderful girls, we'll miss them at commencement.

The importance attached to our being "Centenary" graduates was stressed from September to June. The big event (from our viewpoint) was the pageant, "The Fountain Out of the Rock," with senior Carol Coyle capturing dramatic honors for her depiction of Hetty Green, the Wall Street financier.

Then, finally, came the culmination of high school, graduation night, with all its thrills of achievement and its surprises. We were arrayed in white caps and gowns walking down the aisle to receive our diplomas. Then it was all over—four happy, happy years of high school had passed.

The Graduation Mass was one of our last joys together. During the Holy Sacrifice, we, the graduates, together thanked God for His many past blessings, and prayed for continued grace and guidance in the future. Although we will probably enter into various phases and walks of life, we will always be united through the Mass, the spiritual bond of all Catholics.

Father Neufeld, a dear friend of every Josephite, offered the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass in St. Boniface Church, our own little Catholic church around the corner. Every graduate received Christ in Holy Communion, the pledge of everlasting life. After Mass, we returned to the school for our annual Communion Breakfast in the school cafeteria.

The Mass... Our Preparation for Life

Thankful and delighted were our hearts as we concluded our four wonderful and unforgettable years at St. Joseph's. With the Mass as our guiding force, we are prepared to embark upon a new adventure, and to live a life which will lead us to our ultimate and final goal—happiness in heaven.

"They who do not belong to the city of God shall inherit eternal misery."

The City of God, by St. Augustine

The vision which gave impetus to the founding Sisters of St. Joseph and which inspires the Sisters still in this great metropolis must surely have been that of St. John as described in the Apocalypse: "I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem . . . Behold the tabernacle of God with men, and He will dwell with them and they shall be His people." Josephite schools are primarily dedicated to the education of the spirit and the salvation of souls.

Graduating from a school of this thoroughly Christian system of education, we are prepared to enter a society which is rapidly becoming Godless. Materialism, capitalism and secularism are becoming the forces which are taking His place. Will this society be better because of our example in the practice of the ideals inculcated in our religious instructions in school? It should be. Our Holy Father looks to us, the graduates of Catholic high schools to unite in a crusade of prayer and example for those of our own age who have not had the privileges enjoyed by us.

During our years as students in St. Joseph's our minds were filled to their capacity with learning to equip us in every phase of life. We were prepared to take our place in two cities—the city which is our testing grounds for the future, mankind, and ultimately in the eternal city. It was through the efforts and example of the Sisters that a greater love for Jesus Christ was strengthened. It was they who encouraged daily visits to our chapel, attendance at First Friday devotions, and the frequent recitation of the Rosary and of our morning and afternoon prayers. To encourage daily attendance at Mass, they provided breakfast in the school cafeteria for daily communicants. We were also very fortunate in having the Encyclicals of our Holy Fathers explained to us by patient priests who each week gave freely of their precious time and who afterwards heard our confessions.

To the girls of St. Joseph's, however, Religion is not just a formal subject that has to be studied, but it is a manner of living. Throughout the year Josephites by their example try to exemplify the ideas taught them in class. In the beautiful month of May the girls publicly show their devotion to Mary by crowning her their Queen. They also take part in the impressive Loyalty Day Parade which purports to counteract the anti-religious Communist May Day Parade. The culminating activity of the scholastic year comes during Holy Week when the school provides for its students a three day retreat. Daily Mass, conferences, reading spiritual literature, Benediction and the retreat confessions are in order at different times throughout the entire school.

With the education and guidance we have received we should be able to become examples of genuine goodness and wholesome holiness. We, when looked upon and observed by others, should serve as an inspiration. We, as products of a Catholic education should be able to influence others not only to be successful in this life but more important, in the life to come.

Religion

A Way of Life . . .

All eyes of the members of the Discussion Club of St. Joseph turn to Joan Feeney as she tries to put her point across to Patricia Cottingham, Chairman. The club consisting of fifty-two members, meets each week to discuss matters concerning religion.

The girls seem to be enjoying what Father Johnston has to say as he teaches them the encyclical on Christian Marriage. Each term one encyclical is taught by the priests at St. Joseph's, in the hope that we will be better prepared to cope with the problems of life and of the world.

From our first day in St. Joseph's to the very day of graduation, our teachers tried to inculcate in us the doctrines of God's great gift—our faith.

In the freshman year emphasis is placed on the Commandments and the Sacraments. It is of necessity that we learn these principles upon which our faith is based at the outset of our high school years. During the second year the girls are given a better and clearer understanding of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. The third year gives a clearer knowledge of the prophecies for the coming of the Messiah and of our Lord's exemplary life while on earth, in the study of the Old and New Testaments. It is during this period that the encyclicals

"Divini Redemptoris" (On Atheistic Communism) and "Quadragesimo Anno" (On Reconstruction of the Social Order), are taught. During our senior year the Reverend Fathers Laurie and Johnston instruct us on the encyclicals "Casti Canubii" (On the Christian Marriage) and "Divini Illius Magistri" (On Education), in order to better prepare us for the future.

Realizing that we are being molded into future parents and citizens, we recognize, too, the necessity for a better knowledge of God and His church so that we can become better models of the Christian way of life.

Sister Winifred Marie and her official class dedicate their day to Mary by reciting the Act of Consecration. Each morning, every class makes the Act of Consecration to our Blessed Mother in the hope that Mary will guide them throughout their day.

Every First Friday finds the Seniors spending their free time in adoration before the Blessed Sacrament. Continuous Exposition is possible because of the students' Guard of Honor which is formed throughout the entire day.

Ellen Dunn lights a candle in the Chapel before the Blessed Sacrament. During the month of November these small vigil lights burn continuously for the Holy Souls in purgatory.

. . . And of Love

Our chapel is truly a place of comfort, light and peace. Here in its sanctuary many a troubled moment is spent in the hopes that the loving hand of God will reach out to soothe the disturbed mind.

Each Friday a different class is given the privilege of attending Mass and receiving Holy Communion in a group. On First Friday's the Blessed Sacrament is exposed during the entire day for the adoration of the students and faculty in their free time.

The students are thankful for a place such as this where they can place the cares of the world in the hands of God while drawing closer to Him in His Holy City.

"My Lord and my God"—The priest raises the Host during the Consecration at Friday morning Mass in the Chapel. Each class is assigned a special Friday on which it is their privilege to attend the Holy Sacrifice in the school Chapel, Our Lady of Fatima Oratory.

The May

The event most cherished and anticipated by the students of St. Joseph's—the Crowning of our Blessed Mother as Queen, took place on May thirty-first amid an atmosphere of great excitement.

The usual splendor was present as our Lady's retinue, beautifully arrayed in a rainbow of colorful gowns, made its way down Bridge Street. Upon their arrival at the convent garden they presented before our Lady's shrine their humble offerings of flowers.

As this impressive scene unfolded the traffic on busy Bridge Street stopped voluntarily; every window in the surrounding skyscrapers framed a group of reverent spectators; the crowds of noon-day shoppers and office workers became respectful, motionless participants holding rosaries openly.

After the burning of the petitions and the singing of the traditional hymns, all eyes became focused on Our Lady as she was once more crowned Queen of the May, amid a glorious burst of song.

The Coronation Ceremony was then terminated with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament as the Queen made way for the King.

At the finish of the colorful procession down Bridge Street, from the school building to the convent garden, Irene Brereton is crowned Queen of the May by her classmates in the traditional ceremony.

Macula non est in te

Immediately preceding the climax of the crowning the ladies-in-waiting and the flower girls place their "flowers of the rarest" at the foot of our Lady's statue as a symbol of their love and dedication to their heavenly Queen.

Crowning

The atmosphere is quiet and attentive; the only sound is the soft organ music as the May Queen, attended by her court, approaches the pedestal bearing our Lady's statue.

At the high point of the ceremony, Irene removes her crown of May blossoms and places it reverently on the head of our Lady's statue.

Amidst a glorious burst of song by the onlooking student body, Irene returns to her throne. After Benediction the court returns to the School, making a final rainbow of pastel colors over Bridge Street.

After setting up the Legion altar which consists of an altar cloth, a statue of the Blessed Mother, two lighted candles and two vases containing fresh flowers, the members kneel in a circle reciting the Rosary after having completed the opening prayers. This is the first step in every Legion meeting.

Legion of Mary

Catholic Action must play a very important part in our school so that when we leave the protective arms of St. Joseph's we will be able to bring a bit of Catholicism to our troubled world.

The activity which best fosters our interest in Catholic Action is the Legion of Mary. It was first started with one small group, but has now grown to the extent that it outnumbers all the other activities.

When joining the ranks of the Legion, a Legionnaire assumes a number of duties among which are: the recitation of the prayers in the Tessara, the Legion leaflet; the performance of two hours work; and the attending of the weekly meeting.

The many good works which are performed by the girls include hospital work, mission work, parish work, knitting of cancer pads, and charity work. . . . "The greatest of these is charity."—these words of St. Paul explicitly describe the work of the Legion of Mary.

The agenda of the Legion consists of: Opening prayers, spiritual reading, minutes of the previous meeting, standing instructions (on the first meeting of each month), roll call, treasurer's report, reports given by girls, Catena, Allocutio, secret bag, continuation of reports, Vice President's report, assignment of work, other business (discussion) and concluding prayers.

Although there are hundreds of Legion Presidium throughout the world, every Legion meeting is conducted in the same manner without the exclusion of a single step.

The next step is the reading of spiritual literature from the Legion Handbook. The members listen attentively as Sister reads a portion of the book to them.

The other members await their turn as Muriel Powers, takes the completed assignment of Cathy Costello. All work is recorded by the President as well as in the minutes of the Secretary.

To Jesus

Through Mary

Ellen French arranges the bulletin board at The Brooklyn Diocesan Library as Carol Brereton replaces a book which has just been returned. This is another of the many forms of Legion work performed by the members.

Therese Di Angelius and Winnie Gliebe stop in before distributing the water pitchers to the other patients, to pay a visit to Mr. Mulvihill, who formerly was an elevator operator at St. Joseph's until his untimely accident. Trying to cheer patients at Holy Family Hospital is another of the many works done by Legionnaires.

While filling the water pitchers which are to be distributed to the patients, Therese Di Angelius smiles at Winnie Gliebe as she looks for a towel in the linen cabinet. The many hours that are spent at the various hospitals are counted as Legionnary work.

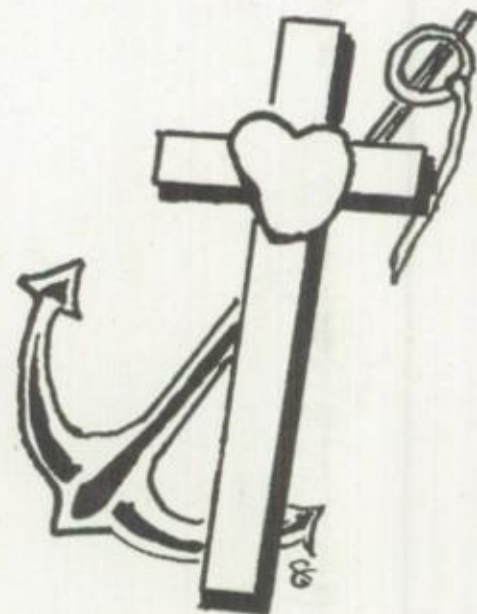

Another of the fifteen steps included in each Legion gathering is the Discussion period. Mary Oakey seems to be intent on putting her point across to Carolyn White as the members look on.

Devotions

Therese DiAngelus and Mary O'Rourke offer their rosaries before the Blessed Sacrament, which is exposed on our beautifully decorated altar on every First Friday, in hopes that their petitions will be granted.

On our annual retreat Pat Horn reads a pamphlet on the choosing of the right vocation, Rosemary Kourdy looks at a picture of the newly constructed Novitiate at Brentwood, while Erica Grossheimer reads a book on the lives of the saints and Sheila McClymonte reads a pamphlet about the sacrifices of the Maryknoll sisters. This is typical of the serious attitude of the girls during their retreat.

The Juniors listen attentively during a retreat conference in the school auditorium. On March 27, 28, and 29, the three days of our annual retreat, the auditorium was transformed into a Church of God. The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass was offered here twice daily before two different groups, and the day was closed with a conference and Benediction.

Blessed Be God

Knowing that habits formed while in high school are usually retained after graduation, everything possible is done to draw closer to God the souls of the students of St. Joseph's. The best possible means of attaining this end is through devotion to God and His Blessed Mother.

Besides providing religious pamphlets and articles to promote this aim, religious posters are displayed in the halls and classrooms. To encourage the attendance at daily Mass and Communion either at the 7:30 and 8:00 o'clock Masses at St. Boniface or in the student's own parish church, breakfast was served during the past year in the school cafeteria by the students themselves who have volunteered to do this good work. In addition to this, the zealous priests who teach Religion to the Juniors and Seniors hear confessions three days a week during much of the day and give much needed advice and happy solutions to the problem of some harried student.

Our annual Holy Week Retreat was given in order to make immediate preparation for the great feast of the Resurrection and remote preparation for the trials of life. During this period the school was divided into three groups with Father Raymond Neufeld conducting the Senior retreat, Father Adolf Klein, the Junior and Sophomore retreat and Father Joseph Ostermann the Freshman retreat. This period helped many of the girls to decide their future and also strengthened their desire to attend the sacraments more frequently.

We, having been given every possible opportunity to attain religious motivations, are fully prepared to face the many problems that life presents, as we always have the comforting words of God and His Blessed Mother to help us in time of temptation and hardship.

Upon entering the school each morning the students are greeted by the consoling likeness of Our Lady. Truly the protector of our school, it is fitting that a statue of her grace our entrance hall. The students take great pride keeping flowers before Our Lady's shrine during the months of May and October.

Helen Cappalino devoutly says the Stations of the Cross in our Chapel during the Holy Season of Lent. This is a practice of many of the students after lunch, and before and after school every day during the season of our Lord's Passion.

CHAPTER 3

BUSINESS TRAINING

"Concerning the things necessary for the maintenance of this mortal life . . . there is a harmony between the earthly and heavenly cities in regard to what belongs to each."

The City of God, by St. Augustine

With the earliest signs of civilization man began to build cities. The dawn of the "industrial revolution" witnessed a long march of men with faces turned toward the trade centers of the world. The hum of exchange of goods and ideas became one with the singing of machines until the lyric took palpable form—modern blocks of granite and steel skyscrapers pointing up slender fingers to the stars.

And in the cities were always the men and women—striving for subsistence, working out a destiny.

The day after we graduate from this school we shall take a place in their system. Toward this end have the Sisters of St. Joseph designed our business courses.

An introductory course termed the Introduction to Business made us conscious of business procedures and of many practical technicalities which proved a basis for our subsequent business courses. The first year also offered us a course in Business Arithmetic to refresh and sharpen our ability to perform accurate mental calculation in business transactions.

The second year placed us at the typewriter where our skill developed from a thirty words a minute into a rhythmic, letter-perfect fifty-five to sixty w.p.m. As sophomores we began to draw and to decipher stenographic symbols. About half the group were given the Gregg system, the other half adhering to the traditional Pitman. During our third year we prepared for the transcription regents exam with great trepidation; the business law period was pleasant and easier on our nervous systems. Senior year divided the group again. The secretarial-minded members of the class went into Secretarial Practice, the general office advocates began a comprehensive study of business machines in Office Practice. The latter classes had a variety of types to master including the Ditto, Mimeograph, Comptometer, the Burroughs, the Sundstrand and the Victory calculators. These students also learned Bookkeeping to round out their business interests.

An integral part of our school's business department is the combined Placement Bureau and Guidance Department. Through this office everyone of us was screened most considerately and then advised regarding aptitudes and talents. At the termination of one year in high school we were given the old reliable Hammon-Nelson psychological and achievement test; as Sophomores the Scientific Research Association Youth Inventory test showed us our social relationships objectively; the S. R. A. Clerical Aptitude test given us in the third year tested our reactions to office work; finally, as Seniors, besides the S. R. A. Mental Ability test which helped in the selection of a suitable field, we took the Ohio University General Aptitude test which is geared to help make a definite final selection. Those students who are not planning to attend college have already secured positions in reliable business houses. As a result of a Civil Service examination administered on March second in our school building by a government agent, many June '56 graduates will begin to work for the City of New York.

Shorthand and Typewriting

*Our Standard . . .
Speed plus Accuracy*

The first step in the achievement of a secretary's main function, to transcribe letters, is the mastering of Shorthand. This learning process includes the acquirement of a knowledge of the basic rules and symbols which comprise this new recording method. The student is offered two of the main systems in use today, Gregg and Pitman, and upon the completion of this course is equipped to advance into the realm where speed is the main factor.

At the same time, the students of stenography are learning the seemingly complicated mechanism of the typewriter. In this, her second year, she acquires the rhythmic strokes of the efficient typist, together with a knowledge of tabulation, arrangement of letters, rough drafts, and typing on ruled lines.

All these factors are incorporated into transcription. The achievement of speed as well as accuracy in performing dictation and transcription is the major element of the junior's business training since only perfection is accepted in the competitive business world.

Speed in typing becomes all-important as these business-minded seniors concentrate on achieving a high wpm with a minimum of errors. At least fifty words a minute and maximum accuracy in typing are our aim as we prepare to enter the business world as confident, efficient secretaries.

Sister Miriam Augusta dictates to a class of alert juniors trying to record each word with accuracy and speed in hope of passing their Transcription Regents. This training prepares the student to perform efficiently a secretary's main function, to transcribe letters.

Sister Cecilia Agnes
*Shorthand, Secretarial
Practice*

Sister Saint Eugene
*Shorthand, Secretarial
Practice*

Sister Mary Thomasina
Shorthand, Typing

From our shorthand notes we transcribe the day's dictation, keeping in mind our goal, the achievement of perfection. Each letter communicates to the reader our interest in him and represents our employer. It is our duty, therefore, to make each transcription the essence of perfection.

Sister Agnes Maurice
Shorthand, Typing

Accuracy is an important factor in the business world, and Mary Liberatore, Ellen Clarke, Patricia Gemmell, Alice Kelly, Frances Gilhooly, and Carol Smith are making use of the comptometers to insure such accuracy. The proper use of these machines are taught to help us in fulfilling the duties of our chosen field.

Office Practice

Machines to Turn the Wheels of Progress

The maze of machines which must be mastered by tomorrow's secretary begins to unfold as our new senior is led through all sorts of mechanical devices invented to save time and energy. The Secretarial and Office Practice students are given an opportunity to learn and use the various machines which are considered standard equipment in the Business Department of St. Joseph's and include electric and manual typewriters, mimeograph, ditto, comptometers, calculators and dictaphones.

During the past year the seniors were able to receive expert training in the all-important business grace of "how to answer the telephone." The teletrainer, loaned to us by the Bell Telephone Company, allows an entire class, no matter how large or small, to study from the conversations of the students. It enables criticism and discussion of the actions and expressions used in various situations. In this way the teletrainer fulfills its purpose of training each student to capably handle the commonest and most widely misused of office equipment, the telephone.

In this way are we prepared to enter the business world, confident and efficient, with an adequate knowledge of every phase of business work.

Additions to the typewritten stencil are made by Lorraine Szymanski with the aid of the mimeoscope. This machine is also used to trace artwork on letters, programs or other material which is to be reproduced on the mimeograph.

Diana Wroblewski is supervising the operation of the mimeograph as Catherine Costello examines a finished copy of the duplicated material. Another task of a busy secretary made easy by the use of a machine capable of speed is thus completed.

Although business transactions require that various copies of notices and reports be prepared, this task is simplified by the use of the "Ditto" machine. Ann McDermott and Valerie Howell are illustrating the simple operation of this device.

Kathleen Guinan, Ann McDermott, Arlene Pierce, and Eileen Ferguson are transcribing from the dictaphones. Helen McGarrity, Frances Dunbar, Lorraine Szymanski, and Irene Walsh are performing mathematical computations on the versatile adding machines.

Introduction to Business

Preparing for their future as secretaries, Angela Marra, Pat Murtha, Kathryn Gilbert, Veronica Inch, and Marie Brandine are filing, proofreading, and sealing correspondence. Introduction to Business teaches our new freshmen the requirements and skills of an efficient businesswoman.

The business training of a student commences in the first year with Introduction to Business and Business Arithmetic. These two subjects lay the foundation for her future studies in the business field.

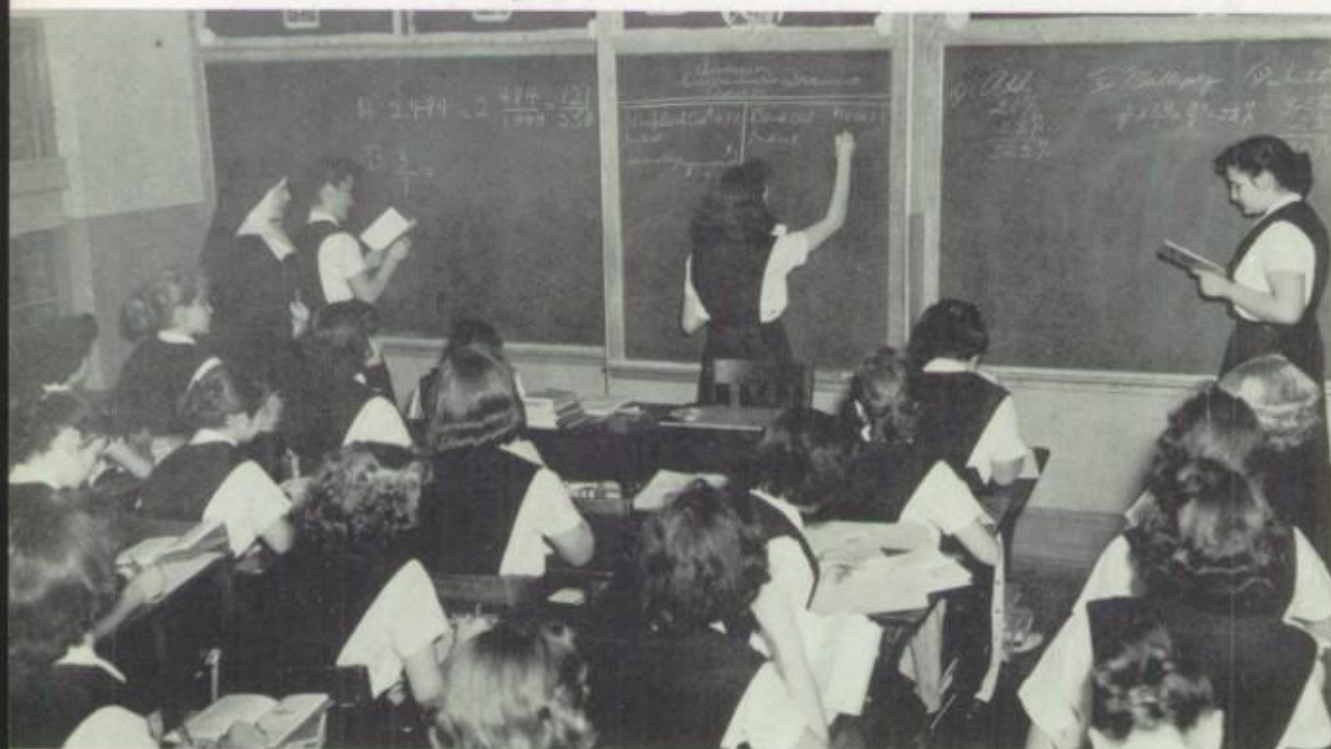

The fundamental rudiments are mastered and an over-all picture of the requirements and skills of an efficient secretary are presented in Introduction to Business. The future businesswoman is expected and called upon to accomplish various tasks which are outlined in the text, in addition to her ability to take shorthand and transcribe her notes.

Mathematical computations which are found in the average business day are taught in Business Arithmetic. The problems with which the student is faced deal for the most part, with the ordinary transactions of a firm which occur almost daily. This acts as a basis for the student's year of Bookkeeping.

"Commercial Law or Business Law is that part of the law which deals chiefly with business transactions and business relations." This definition, as stated in the law text, best describes the actual substance of this course, the purpose of which is to acquaint the student studying for positions in the business world, with the essential elements and principles of law to best qualify her to meet the requisites of her chosen field.

In addition to understanding and handling the various types of office records, our students of Bookkeeping are taught to analyze business transactions, to journalize and post to the ledger, take a trial balance, make adjusting and closing entries and preparing the necessary financial statements needed to show the condition of a business. This all-around training gives the student an understanding of the business cycle of a fiscal period and the principle underlying records needed to complete this cycle. Grounded in these fundamentals, a student is equipped to undertake the advanced training that will bring her into the professional field of accounting.

The smiling faces indicate success as Joanne Breusch, Josephine Brandine, Carol Riester, Barbara Niebergall, and Rosemary Shumway proudly display their hard earned CBEA Law competition cup. Each year the Catholic Business Education Association gives awards to deserving students who have proven by a competitive written examination to be proficient in a particular business field.

Guidance

As head of the Placement Bureau, Sister Catherine Maria places the Seniors in positions to which they are best suited. To simplify this enormous job, the members of the senior class are given the Scientific Research Association (S R A) Aptitude Test, which helps the girls in selecting appropriate fields. The Ohio University General Aptitude Test is given to verify their first choice.

Part time positions are secured for the juniors through the findings of a series of aptitude and achievement tests taken over a period of their four years in high school.

The results of these tests taken throughout each student's four years of attendance at St. Joseph's, are contributing factors in aiding Sister in her work. Sister's interest and excellent advice together with the cooperation of the girls results in the placement of our girls in positions which assure happier and more profitable futures.

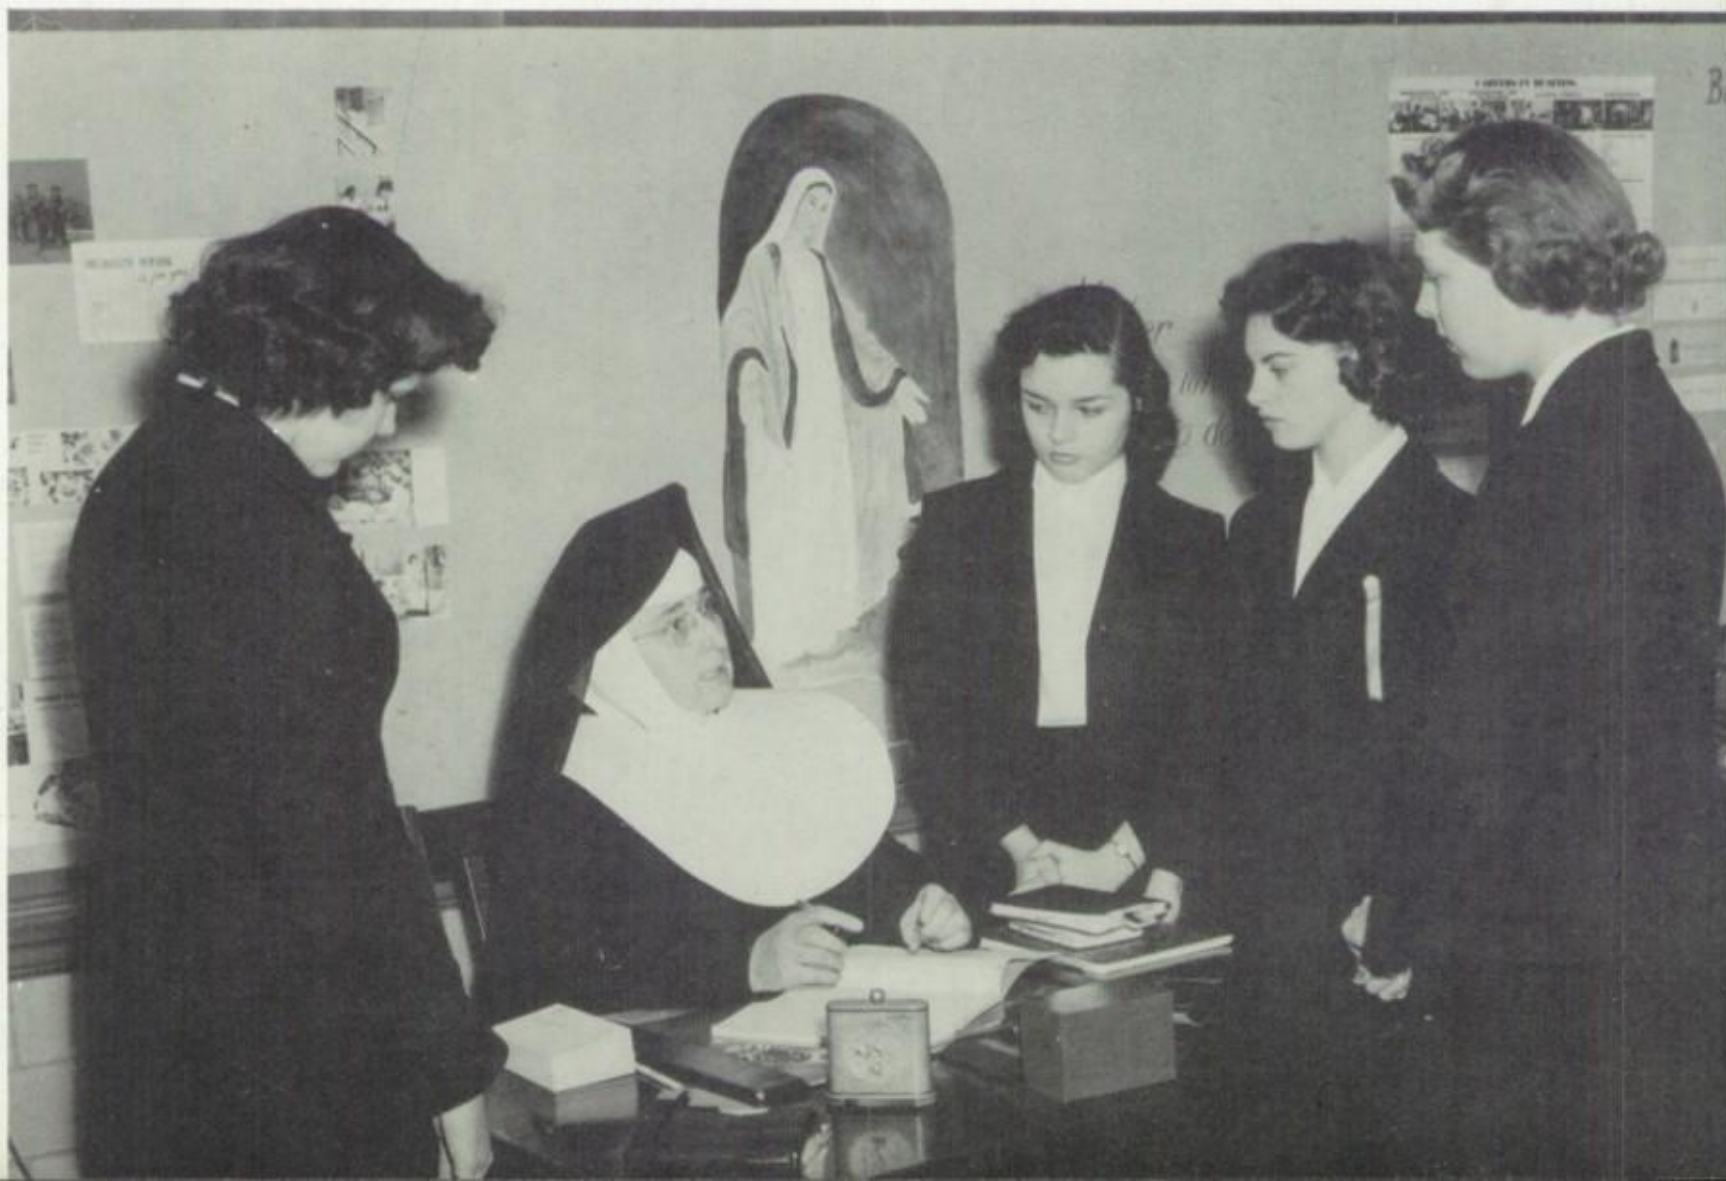

The Placement office is one of the busiest rooms in the entire school. Paula Schultz and Geraldine Croake undertake the task of answering correspondence, and doing the general office work necessary. Letters come there from concerns all over New York, seeking girls from our school to fill vacant office positions.

Margaret Smith, Anita Rowland, Georgia Lanagan, and Louise Dowd discuss prospective positions with Sister Catherine Maria. Sister recommends each student, before she graduates, to a position which she considers suited according to her particular abilities. Every graduate of St. Joseph's leaves with the certainty of a worthwhile position awaiting in the business world.

Each year a "Career Day" is presented to the graduates by the Guidance Department. Invited to speak to the graduates on this day are persons from every field of endeavor. Eileen McNamara and Patricia Horn turn from a discussion with a student nurse to pose for the cameras.

Muriel Powers, Alice Kelly and Regina Maynes read through the vocational literature in the small, but adequate, Guidance Library. Information concerning all walks of life, from nursing and teaching, to baby care and homemaking, aids students in their choice of a career.

As a student approaches her graduation year she must seriously consider just what the future will hold. This question is answered for her by Sister Catherine Maria with the present assistance of Sister Thomasina. Sister has her office on the fifth floor, in room 501, and from there conducts all her activities as head of the Guidance Bureau. It is here that a file is kept on each student's personality, interests and aptitudes.

There is a steady stream of students entering the guidance room where they receive the help they need in deciding just exactly what kind of a career they are best suited for. Here Sister directs the girls into the right fields of the business world, or suggests what college would best answer their needs.

As long as there is a room titled "Guidance," no girl will graduate from Saint Joseph's doubtful of what is good for her in the choice of career.

... We Beseech Thee

In the fifth floor Guidance Room students find the answers to puzzling questions concerning requirements for admittance into college by reading the literature on display there. Rose Neuser and Carol Weidenschlager read requirements from College Board Examinations as Winifred Gliebe points out to Patricia Horn the date and place of the St. Joseph's College Scholarship Examination.

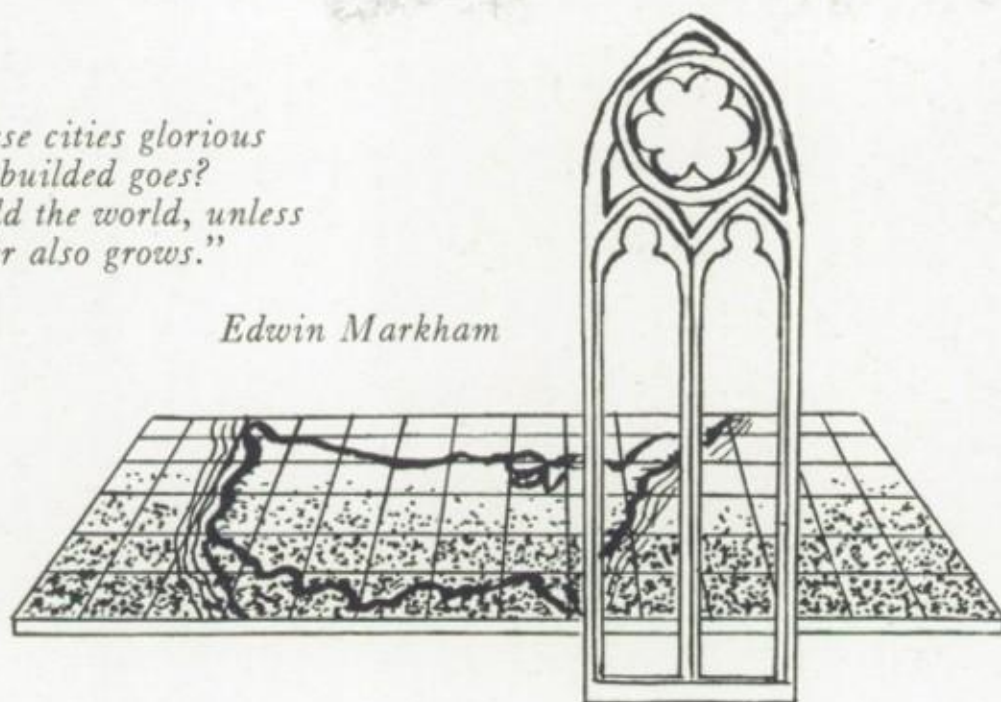

CULTURAL BACKGROUNDS

*"Why build these cities glorious
If man unbuilted goes?
In vain we build the world, unless
The builder also grows."*

Edwin Markham

When Mother Austin Kean took her infant Community to the first motherhouse in Flushing in 1856, she could hardly have envisioned its phenomenal growth. The forty-nine Religious who comprise our faculty are not only exemplars of the Christian life who edify us, but they are well equipped to teach formulas, evoke curiosity, transmit culture and guide careers. It is with pardonable pride that we recount that besides the Bachelor's degree held by every member of our teaching staff, the majority of the Sisters hold one, and in some cases even two, Master's degrees, having done Graduate work in an impressive roster of universities which include: St. John's University, New York University, Columbia University, Providence College, St. Bonaventure University, Fordham University, Middlebury College, Nazareth College, Boston University, Berlitz School, Parson's School of Design, New York State School of Applied Arts and Sciences, Brooklyn Museum School of Art, and El Colegio Sagrado Corazon, Puerto Rico.

With this in mind, it is clearly seen that although our school is basically commercial, the cultural and academic subjects included in the curriculum are taught by capable, accomplished teachers. Besides the regular commercial subjects, each student is required to take four years of English and History, at least two years of Spanish, and at least one year each of Science, Mathematics, Art and Music to help broaden the intellect and develop the mind.

Externs often ask why a study of history, for example, is necessary in a commercial school. A background of historical knowledge is vital to understand innumerable references which we meet daily in newspapers, books, magazines, moving pictures, radio, and television. These references may range from a joke about someone looking like an Egyptian mummy to a serious statement about democracy and totalitarianism. By studying the history of our own country, and of other countries as well, we acquire a truer appreciation of our democratic heritage and a better understanding of what we can do to strengthen and defend it. This is an example of culture being put to work for a good purpose.

Upon first entering a commercial school, however, a student's first and foremost intention is, most likely, to become a successful secretary. If this is true, the technical efficiency gained in St. Joseph's through the many business subjects is beyond her fondest dreams.

In her four years commercial program, however, is included also cultural studies which are not only an essential but an integral part of every Josephite's development. These subjects are not given to her to "fill out a program;" rather, they are provided in order that she may possess the requisites needed to lead an exemplary Christian life.

Even if a girl's formal education goes no farther than her four years of high school, and her choice is the business world, she realizes upon graduation that technical ability alone will not satisfy her need. It is at this time she becomes very thankful for the labor of the Sisters in developing culture in her through the study of History, English, and other academic subjects. A woman in the world today must have a thorough knowledge of her own motivations, achievements, failures and conflicts. She can gain this through a study of the world's literature, art and music as well as through a knowledge of man's progress in history.

How many times did she hear it said that a commercial student could not attend college? In St. Joseph's however, every student who enrolls is provided with electives which not only enables her to attend a college of her choice but also awakens in her a natural spirit of curiosity to the world around her.

She learns to appreciate the finer things—the works of the world's great artists, scientists, writers and musicians depicting God's wonders in nature. She learns through the study of the Spanish language and culture the mannerisms and language of an interesting as well as important group of people in the world today. She learns, through the study of mathematics, the importance of training her mind and will.

And finally, she learns the importance of cooperation, consideration, and understanding of her fellow human beings.

This junior group is representative of every class in St. Joseph's as they begin their day with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Daily, every student renews her fidelity to America as, "... one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all."

The world geography classes in the first year open a new meaning for the world around us. The class learns the importance of fertile soil and soil conservation to a nation. The students find it interesting to learn of the physical contour of the earth.

The history civics course is taken by second year students, who are taught to realize the freedoms they enjoy, the rights they possess and the obligations they are responsible for. It is the policy, not only of civics students, but of every class in the entire school, to salute the flag after morning prayers. The National Anthem is also sung.

In the latter part of the Sophomore year, world history is inserted into the curriculum. Ancient, medieval and modern times are studied and their bearings on our future discussed. Also a part of the history class is the training for the annual Hearst Oratorical Contest, sponsored by the Hearst Publications and the American Legion oratorical contest.

The students of the American history class learn the struggle of our government for life, the laws it passed to keep from smothering and depriving its people of God given rights to weigh the ends of both capitalism and communism.

History plays an important part in the life of any student and it is her duty to treat each history class as a rung in the ladder to good citizenship or treachery.

The seniors read their weekly copy of the current events magazine "Our Times" which keeps them informed on the recent political, social and economic problems of the nation. With a knowledge of today's government and a background of past history, students are prepared for the duty and responsibility facing them as citizens, and future voters of America.

A Look Into Our Own Language

English, a four year course terminating with a four unit Regents creditation, is required of every student graduating from this school.

Throughout our four years we are constantly being inculcated with correct language habits, and the means to increase our vocabulary. Moreover, performing in class plays and skits and taking part in discussions conducted according to Parliamentary Procedure, will assist us in expressing ourselves with simplicity and clarity. On paper all aspects of composition are brought to our attention: sentence structure, paragraphing, punctuation, grammar and precise use of words.

In our first and second years, we become acquainted with "Joy in Reading" and "Appreciation Through Reading." These literature books play an important role in furnishing the kind of information and vicarious experience which will enrich our personality. In our third year we pursue the study of American literature against a framework of chronological data from the Colonial era to the present day, thereby broadening our understanding of how present-day American ideas and ideals have developed through the years. In our last year, the curriculum comprises the study and background of English literature. Beginning with Beowulf we unearth treasures which include Shakespeare's tragedies, "Macbeth" and "Hamlet." In all these works we learn that man's restlessness will never cease until he directs his attention toward the city of God.

Finished at last!—Seniors Carol Weidenschlager, Helen Loggie, Barbara Thursland, Phyllis Snow and Martina Gissi proudly admire their exhibit of the immortal Shakespearean tragedy "Macbeth." This realistic display was exhibited in the library where the Seniors studying seventh term English literature had the added advantage and opportunity of seeing it.

The Library Of Letters and of Learning

Madeline Burke is replacing the cards in returned books while Bernadette Sjoberg and Theresa Graf have their selections checked at the charging desk by Carole O'Brien. Each day our library pages contribute their free time either before school in the morning, during their study periods, or after three o'clock in the afternoon to aid in the smooth and efficient running of our library.

Our library, one of the most modern and complete in the city, is ably administered by Sister Saint Maurice who has organized seventy-seven students into proficient library pages. The library's reference room and book shelves afford the students of St. Joseph's the maximum of research and recreational material. Containing almost 6,000 volumes covering a wide scope of learning, it provides for its members an adequate coverage of the requirements of a high school student.

Convenient hardwood tables and chairs are comfortably spaced throughout the reading room where zealous students spend hours every week reading the biographies of the great men past and contemporary, the history of our civilization and Religion, the literary lore of our mother tongue, or pursuing the contents of the forty current periodicals on display in the magazine rack.

The library and its operation serves as test material to all students who may in future continue to study the Library Science they began in high school. Leastwise it is a fount where the thirst of young minds for knowledge may be slaked with comfort and convenience.

Students are introduced to the mechanics of library facilities in their first term of Library Science. Ann Todaro, during an oral quiz, explains to Sister Saint Maurice and class the convenience of the cross references and the card catalogue.

Library Pages Eileen Smith, Camille Cardillo and Annette La Rosa restore returned books to their proper place on the shelves. This is just one of the numerous tasks which they willingly perform daily during their study periods.

Margaret Fox looks on as Dolores Thornton posts the current list of the Legency of Decency. One of the many duties of the Library Pages is to post the newly published Legency of Decency list, which affords to all our students information on the rating of each current popular film suitable for general patronage.

Patricia Norris, Maryann Mascicci, Eileen McCarthy and Irene Purcell keep our library clean by dusting the books and shelves. This household chore is performed before the other library pages tackle the more technical tasks of the library.

Frances Gandolfo asks a question of acting teacher, Mary Gormaley, in the senior Intermediate Algebra class. The other students listen and try to solve the mixture problem on the blackboard.

Mathematics

Toward Clearer Thinking

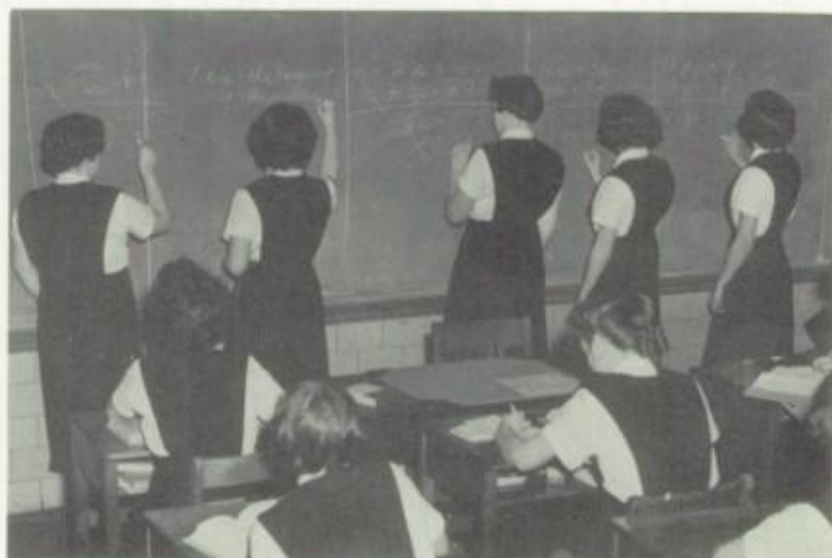

Mathematics offer the students a chance to obtain a clearer view of matters as they really are, and an opportunity to develop her mind to cope with each new situation and form solutions from the apparent facts.

After a student has chosen elementary Algebra as her elective in the second year, she may go one step farther to enhance these primary skills through a one year course in Geometry in the third year. Intermediate Algebra in the Senior year completes the complex cycle of equations and formulas.

Although a complete sequence of Mathematics is not offered, the courses given at St. Joseph's help to form in the student's mind the interest conducive to thought and the satisfaction that comes from working out a problem to its completion.

It looks like the juniors are having a grand time with the trapezoid theorem Mary McCann is explaining. Is that an angle or a line she's bisecting? This course in Geometry is one of the many subjects included in St. Joseph's well rounded academic department. Although St. Joseph's is noted for its commercial training, it is encouraging to note that many girls are taking advantage of the academic studies to prepare for college.

Learning the more complex facts of algebra is the aim of these sophomore students as they complete the digit problems on the blackboards. These marks are entered on the class record cards and a percentage of them aid in determining the final mark of each student.

An Orderly Study of Nature

The study of living things—better known as Biology—always unfolds to the Freshmen the workings of God's wonderful world. The girls are studying cell structures under a microscope in the new laboratory connecting the Mother Charles Edward extension and the Parmentier Building.

In the one year Biology course required for the freshmen, we become aware of the complexities of the familiar living things around us, like flowers, trees and insects. This simple introduction to the wonders of God's creations has fostered in many of us the desire to advance farther into the realms of science and life.

To those students who are determined to delve further into the mysteries of nature, a course in Chemistry is offered in the fourth year. Girls completing this course are thus qualified to pursue college studies in Science and careers in nursing.

New vistas are opened to the student who first realizes through the elementary courses in Science how wise God, the Designer of the universe, is, and how easily His works are ours to discover.

“Art is Beauty”

As young and enthusiastic art lovers, we have the opportunity of expressing ourselves, of developing a “technique” of our own, and of acquiring a sincere appreciation for the finer things of life, through the enriching three-year Art course.

“Every drawing that is made must be done as well as one can do it. Only by this system of working can one progress. Drawing is basic, the very foundation; pen, crayon, or brush manipulation, while very important, is only the dressing up of the artist’s product.” Needless to say, this is the primary step that is brought to our attention when we commence our first year of elementary Art and design. Design is artistic invention. Therefore, we do not copy the work of others but tell our own story. Furthermore, in elementary Art, we develop a proficiency at lettering which plays a significant role in commercial work and, many times, lettering is the nucleus around which the other parts of an illustration are built.

During our second year we become acquainted with water colors and fashion. Thus the mediums, water colors, pens, poster paints and India Ink are put into practical use. Occasionally one of our classmates is selected to pose for us while we try our talents at fashion art. This however, requires a keen eye for detail, and an unerring sense of style.

In the third year the course comprises the study of advertising, interior decorating, the making of book jackets and a complete history of art. In advertising we use ornamentation or decoration with knowledge and discretion. We try to keep our work simple, but at the same time, see that the various units of the work are “tied together into a whole.” Interior decorating consists of designing and building a scale model of our “dream room.” In order to fully appreciate and comprehend the Art course, we are given a history and background of art dating back to the Roman Age.

Art

Every fall term the diocesan Tablet Poster Contest is held. In the spring term the Vocation Poster Contest takes place. Naturally, when participating in these contests, we try our utmost to win these awards by composing and submitting posters that are original and cautiously done.

We, who seek for perfection so that we can pursue a career in Interior Decoration, Architecture, Fashion Design, and Commercial Art, realize that we are primarily striving for a life with Him Who is infinite perfection.

Sister Maria Jude is explaining to her Senior Art Class the points which should be stressed in the Tablet Poster Contest for which they are all diligently working. A Tablet Poster in the fall term and a Vocation Poster in the spring term is a required project for every Art Student.

The Universal Language

As a change from the more prosaic subjects of the curriculum, a music appreciation class, conducted once a week for the first, second, and third term students, helps to lift the spirit and attract the mind toward appreciation of the masterpieces of orchestral and lyrical music.

In the musical theory classes, we learned to produce good tone, to improve vocal techniques, and to be thoughtful in recognizing and understanding the universally famous works of the masters. Learning something of the origin and development of musical instruments and the appreciation of the compositions of famous artists enables us to possess an elementary knowledge of the history of music from the beginning of time until the present day.

This music class has uncovered in some Josephites a hidden talent which has many times proven to be valuable as well as entertaining. Through this basic introduction to the world of music, an interest and desire to pursue a more advanced knowledge has often been developed.

Here we catch a glimpse of Mary Waters, a sophomore, reviewing the fundamentals of music with her official class as Sister John Vianney looks on approvingly. The classes are also taught sight reading, musical composition, the interpretation of music and its appreciation.

Spanish

"Traduzca, Por Favor"

Two "visitors" from South of the Border, "Senorita" Doris Naclerio and "Senor" Theresa Jemma, lend an air of color and quaintness to the everyday Spanish lesson. Holding the poster depicting costumes worn in Mexico is Josephine Mazza. The picture of the famous toreador of Spain and the impressive statue, "Christ of the Andes," of South America, hang in the background.

With a workable knowledge of the language and customs of Spain, Spanish students are prepared to proceed into any college, or directly into the business world where Spanish is the recognized language. As a commercial school, St. Joseph's affords through its Spanish Department an opportunity for girls seeking higher education and an elementary basis for those who wish to embark upon a career in the commercial world.

In the second and third year, we are required to include Spanish in our programs. For those of us who wish to pursue it farther, a third year course is available as an elective. During the first and second years of Spanish, we become acquainted with the basic grammar, vocabulary, culture and idiomatic expression of the Spaniards in preparation for a Regent's examination. The Senior Spanish class concentrates on improving the literary and conversational qualities to which they have been introduced.

Home Education

Christine Feulner applies a tourniquet to the arm of our victim, Mary Lenehan while her Junior classmates view the scene. These students realize that as adults they will be expected to meet emergencies with calmness and confidence.

Miss Trimboli makes use of a chart to point out the various phases of First Aid to which the Freshmen must be acquainted. The correct manner to administer artificial respiration is explained to the students as they view the outline on the chart.

Design for Better Living

Our hostess, Patricia Murtha, demonstrates to her class the correct manner in which her guests, Maureen Curly and Ottilia Aurnhammer, are to be served. Training to prepare us for assumption of our domestic responsibilities is part of the curricula of St. Joseph's students.

As Catholic students, we have come to realize that education means more than just the broadening of our mental capacities. A truly "well-rounded" education will give us a better understanding of ourselves, our neighbors and of God. Home Education, which also includes Health and Safety, has aided us to achieve this end.

During our Freshmen and Sophomore years, the ninth period on Monday was given mainly to the study of Etiquette in Social Behavior. Rules governing hospitality were intermingled with ideas for planning and furnishing our future homes.

As we advanced to our Junior and Senior years Home Education was substituted with Health Education and we undertook the study of the human body. The necessity of a well balanced diet and exercise for a healthy body were realized. We studied narcotics, their use and the harmful effects which result from the excessive use of them.

The entire course in Home Education has but one aim; and this is to prepare us to take our places in the world as true Christian women.

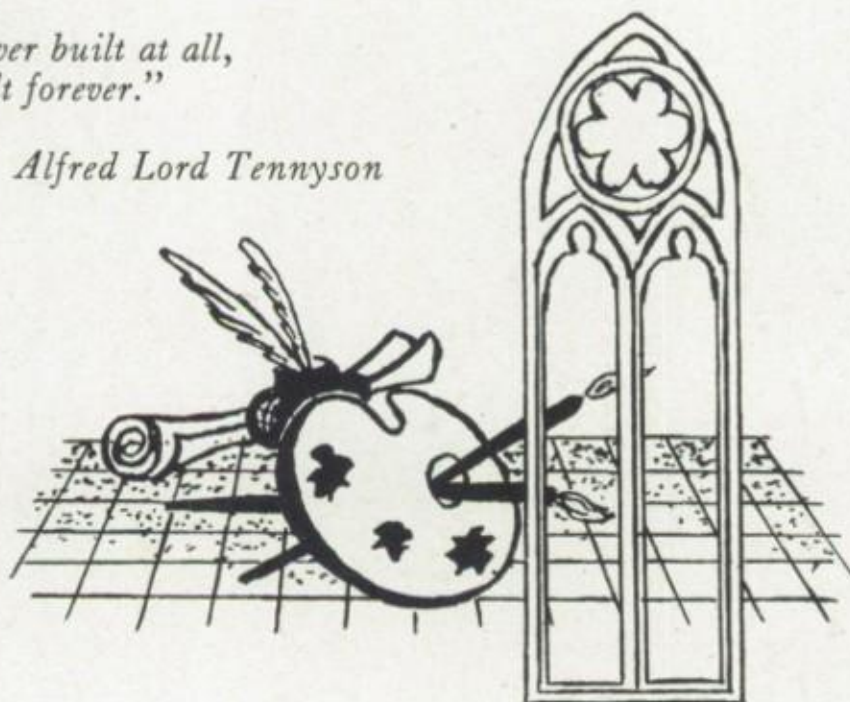

CHAPTER 5

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

*"The city is built
To music, therefore never built at all,
And therefore built forever."*

Alfred Lord Tennyson

Early in the year 1856, Bishop John Loughlin of the diocese of Brooklyn wrote to the Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Joseph in Philadelphia: "If you can send us at once even the smallest number necessary for a new foundation, their number will soon increase and their usefulness be extended and the glory of God promoted." These words proved to be prophetic. The Sisters increased not only in numbers but they have expanded their influence into every field of activity. During the past century the strength of their influence has been felt in formal education, nursing, art, science, music, public relations, philosophy, home-making, social service and business administration and management. True educators, the Sisters are aware of the fact that much of the practical side of these arts and sciences can be inculcated only in active extra-curricular participation.

The Sisters know that the prime objective of modern education is not only to prepare men and women for life through "book knowledge" but through the instilling in them the desire to share in the social activities of their fellow creatures. The student at St. Joseph's realizes that there are many after school activities to satisfy her interests and exercise her abilities; she also understands that the social needs of a teen-ager should center around the extra-curricular programs afforded by both her Church and school. To help her meet this need, she is offered many opportunities to develop qualities of initiative, leadership, intelligence, cooperation and obedience to authority.

The crux of the activities at St. Joseph's is the General Organization of which every girl is a member. Under the supervision of the G. O. and with the advice of a faculty moderator, the student body conducts dances, an annual boatribe, field trips and a Senior week-end in Washington, D. C.

For prospective thespians, the school offers the Irish Show, and this year, the Centenary pageant as notable events on the social calendar. For the school's talented artists, singers and musicians, there are the Art Club, Glee Club and the Orchestra. The girls with the natural curiosity to delve into biology, chemistry and general science find the Science Club to their liking, while those who have a "nose for news" find themselves becoming familiar with newspaper terms such as a galley, a dummy, and an editorial by working in the Journalism Club or on the Yearbook Staff.

The most select of all the school's organizations is the Leo Honor Society composed of those students who have achieved not less than ninety per cent in all major subjects and have proved themselves to be outstanding in scholastic achievements at the same time displaying qualities of leadership and lively Catholicity.

Another distinguished group in our student body is the Student Service League, whose members proudly bear the armband of honor which signifies their willingness to help their fellow students become aware of obedience to authority.

No matter what one's tastes and interests are, in St. Joseph's there is always something to "fill the bill." Some say why join an activity? For two reasons, an activity is beneficial: one, it develops the whole personality, and secondly, it educates to the gleaning of the best that life has to offer.

By carrying a charming well-developed personality with her into the business world, a Catholic woman becomes an influence to her fellow workers by consistently following the road map of Christian living on the journey toward the city of God.

The Fall Officers, Maureen Danielson, President; Eileen McCullough, Vice President; Catherine Cunningham, Secretary and Honoria McKay, Assistant Secretary, all seem to be working diligently in order to make their undertakings a success.

General

The seniors and their escorts all seem to be having a good time dancing to the music of Tom Rubino and His Orchestra. The dance was terminated by the singing of the "Alma Mater."

Mary Ann Honorowski and Joe Connelly, Rose Marie DiBari and Mike Patti with Margaret Canis and John Meunkle are just a few of the happy couples that enjoyed the Senior Dance. Wonderful memories of this night will remain in their hearts for many years to come.

Patricia Behre, Ann Pearsall and Louise Kishkiel look on as Sister Anna Eugene gives Margaret Capuano her check. They were the first winners in our newly organized Booster Club.

GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE

Our nation's capital was one of the historical places the seniors visited while they were in Washington. This trip was one of a series of never to be forgotten experiences of fun and fact.

Organization

The G.O. officers, to the members of the student body, are exemplars of leadership, scholastic ability, and popularity. One of the most colorful spectacles of the school year is the election of these officers, which takes place at the beginning of each new term. Each candidate has the opportunity of placing her picture on a campaign poster to be hung in the front hall of the school. In this way, the students become familiar with the candidates and the offices they are seeking. Then the campaigning begins.

Although it is hard to decide which of the girls deserves the vote, we are always sure of an outstanding officer since all candidates are chosen for the "cream of the crop." Each term from the fourth to the eighth, has a representative in the G.O. to defend their interests. It is the work of the officers to mediate between the faculty and the student body.

To the G.O. we owe many events which help to make the social year interesting and exciting. Included in these are the weekend in Washington for the Senior class, the annual Senior dance, the West Point bus rides, the boat ride to Rye Beach, and various dances during the term.

The Spring Officers, Carol McDonough, President; Kathleen Gillespie, Vice President; Theresa Farrell, Secretary and Tonia Colalillo are trying to plan some events which will enhance the social aspect of our school. As a result of their untiring efforts, activity is never at a standstill.

Leo Honor Society

The Reward of Diligent Study

These three Senior Leo Honor Members, Rose Neuser, Marie Pratt, and Carol Elberfeld are trying to impress on the new sophomore members the great honor and dignity that is bestowed upon them by attaining membership in the Society. Prayer and hard work are two vital essentials for every member.

The Leo Honor Society is a Diocesan Society of which every Catholic High School in Brooklyn is a member. Students become eligible if they have proven themselves to be of high scholastic rating, to have the necessary qualities for leadership during school years, and membership in good standing in one parish activity.

In order to become a member, a student must have an average of ninety per-cent in all her major subjects with a good conduct rating. She must be active in school activities as well as in at least one society of her parish church. She must be a girl who has met with the approval of her Principal, the Faculty and her Pastor. It is only after all of these requirements have been met that she is given the distinction of wearing the Leo Honor Pin on her uniform. Once she is accepted into the Society, she must keep her standards at a high level in order to retain membership.

The Leo Honor Member recognizes the fact that she can do nothing unless she has the grace, the aid and the guidance of Almighty God. However, a true member does not solely rely upon God for success in her studies; she spends many hours doing extra-curricular work in order to help herself grow both spiritually and intellectually.

The primary objective of every Leo Honor Member is to demonstrate to the non-Catholic public the high scholastic and moral training she has received and to exhibit the true Catholic way of life.

Our Senior Leo Honor Members are all justifiably proud of their Leo Honor Pins. Here, they all are displaying their cheerful smiles. They are: Paula Schultz, Deanna Saqqual, Rose Mercurio, Mary Ann Capobianco, Jacqueline Nunziato, Georgia Lanagan, Barbara Thursland, Margaret Smith, Mary Ann Vieira, Camille Giordano, Marie Pratt, Josephine Catapano, Carol Elberfeld, Rose Neuser, Rosemary Kourdy, Carol Ann Riester, Rosemary Shumway, and Rose Huggins.

Our Junior Leo Honor Members are endeavoring with great zeal to keep up their splendid work for the remaining years in Saint Joseph's. They are—Mary Barron, Marie Kadula, Marcella Moran, Barbara McManus, Christine Strang, Catherine Roselle, Geraldine Rieber, Judith Attanasio, Patricia Fennelly, Frances McPartland, and Helen Janice.

All having the honor of being newly inducted into the Diocesan Society are—Geraldine Pisklak, Patricia Cottingham, Jeanette Boyer, Theresa Frasulin, Theresa Rescigno, Gail Bricca, Mary Cox, Carole Ann Crocolicci, Adelaide Hicks and Jeanette Rennock.

Student Service League

Order is the First Law of the Universe

Our Student Service League has established for itself an outstanding reputation by keeping order throughout the entire school. The S. S. L. is comprised of serious-minded and capable girls who undertake the task of maintaining the high standard of order which distinguishes our students. These girls have posts at various traffic spots in the halls, on the stairs and in the cafeteria during our three lunch periods. The blue and gold arm-band, a familiar emblem of the S. S. L. member, classifies her as a symbol of authority.

The Student Service League meets every other Wednesday in the Little Theater to discuss and rectify with the President, Mary Ann Honorowski, any problems encountered during the previous week. The Vice-President, Clementine Ruggerio takes the attendance while the Secretary, Mary Lou Wemyss reads the minutes of the meetings. Its representatives give their time and efforts in performing their duties so well, that this good example is followed by our students.

They are helping our students to become more conscious of obedience, a vital element in our struggle toward the Eternal City. Obedience to law is most important. Just as law in God's City must be obeyed, so too, life in our own city must follow a similar pattern. With the assistance of the S. S. L., the students of Saint Joseph's are continually becoming more school-minded and mutually respectful.

Here in the Little Theater, the officers and supervisors meet for a discussion of a problem that has just arisen. Seated, center, is the president, Mary Ann Honorowski. To the left, Secretary, Mary Lou Wemyss and supervisor, Barbara Niebergall. To the right, Vice-President, Clementine Ruggerio and supervisors, Dolores Statten and Joan Cantwell.

The President of the Student Service League, Mary Ann Honorowski discusses a difficulty with June Maclary as the other members of the S. S. L. eagerly look to its solution. The members are: Claudia Glavina, Eleanor Kaminsky, Marie Calarco, Cecilia Hanvy, Eileen McCullough, Alice Guillen, Arlene Erb, Joan Cantwell, Joan Dabulis, Mary Barron, Arlene Arkins, Frieda Sullivan, Carol Reister, Catherine Costello, Ellen Colgan, Barbara Niebergall, Margaret Canis, Anne Vuoso, Theresa Quinn, Dolores Wright, Carol McDonough, Mary Bradshaw, Patricia Heavy, Margaret Roberto, June Maclary, Elizabeth Donovan, Ann Jackson, Kathleen Dugan, Marilyn Donovan, Mary Lou Wemyss, Clare Walsh, Valerie Hellew, Patricia Vance, Mary Jane McBride, Theresa Jemma, Clementine Ruggerio, Carolyn Metzher, Patricia Oram, Patricia Norris, Roberta Betcher, Eileen Finnegan, Barbara Borbas, Patricia Buchanan, Arlene O'Keefe, Audrey Serio, Patricia Ainsworth, Dolores Statten.

The Tablet

The fifth floor bookroom is a scene of great activity each Friday morning as the Tablets are prepared for distribution. Chairman of the Tablet, Joan McLoughlin checks off numbers from her pad as her assistants, Anna Marie Schaeffer, Arlene Mazorano, Anne Donnelly, Mary Jane Hanna, Patricia Lesniewski, Linda Casaletto and Margaret Freda, busily count out the required number of Tablets.

In a world wracked with Atheism, Communism and Secularism, the Tablet is an outstanding proponent of the principles which are representative of the free press. During the many years of its existence, the Tablet has endeavored successfully to present to the public accurate and authentic coverage of current events. It has given a truly Catholic view point of important political, social and economic issues.

Intelligent Catholics have always realized the importance of reading a newspaper that provides dependable guidance in helping them discern the truth from the slanted reporting which characterizes many of our present day daily newspapers.

The girl chosen to be Tablet Representative in her class is, in reality, a "lay apostle." Her untiring work and enthusiasm spurs her class on to their goal, 100% Tablet representation. She becomes militant in the particular branch of Catholic Action which seeks to activate the principles of Catholicism in daily living. The Catholic press, and notably the Tablet, receives proper estimate among St. Joseph's students as a media for the communication of these ideals.

Our "newsboys," the Tablet Representatives from each class, promote the reading of decent literature by supplying every girl with her copy of the Tablet every Friday. The Representatives posed here are: Josephine Barneo, Judith Basilico, Patricia Black, Audrey Bonin, Carol Brereton, Laura Caruso, Irene Dehler, Leona Ducez, Barbara English, Mary Fagan, Kathleen Faulkner, Angela Galia, Gail Gallagher, Catherine Guinan, Helen Haragsin, Matilda Herald, Marilyn Jacobs, Rose Marie Lobbato, Joyce Lobianco, Marilyn Madebach, Carol McCarthy, Joan McLoughlin, Anita Milaccio, Patricia Mills, Mary Mulvanerty, Mary Murray, Carol Peterson, Carol Peterson, Carol Perenchief, Charlotte Quim, Jo Anne Randazzo, Virginia Rattigan, Carol Roventine, Marie Scafidi, Frances Schweitzer, Christine Strentz, Carolyn Throne.

Sister Regina Immaculate, the Mission Club workers and Legion of Mary members help the Most Reverend Bishop John J. Boardman prepare for distribution the Propagation of the Faith posters to every parish in the Diocese. The Bishop looks on approvingly as the girls try to get the posters out promptly.

And Preach to all Nations

After being in existence only one year, the Mission Club has attained a membership close to that of the most popular school activities. With a thought for those less fortunate, the members willingly relinquish one afternoon a week to spend in doing the small favors which are such tremendous aid to the poor missions in foreign countries.

One of the Mission Club's projects is the collection of cancelled stamps which the girls trim, assort, and forward to foreign missions. They also collect holy pictures which are cut to size and mounted on bright colorful backgrounds for the missionaries to use as awards for the children they teach.

Willingness and generosity are the keynotes on which the members of the Mission Club base their code and their campaign to foster the missionary spirit throughout the school.

These are the members of the Mission Club at St. Joseph's. Every class has a representative and it is through the efforts of these girls that the school is kept up to date on all the work they are going.

Creating Sweet Harmony

Glee

One of the most outstanding and popular activities we have in St. Joseph's is our Glee Club comprised of seventy Josephites. Membership is opened to any student who has a knowledge of music and who is willing to sacrifice Monday and Thursday afternoons to attend rehearsals. The organizing and operating of the meetings is done by the officers under the supervision of its moderator, Sister John Vianney. The officers of our club are: President, Patricia McGrath; Vice President, Jane Trousdell; Secretary, Marcella Greaney; Attendance Secretary, Marie De Gregorio; Librarians, Anna Gonzales and Eileen Kelly; Treasurer, Geraldine Pisklak.

During the past year we performed many times, opening our season with the traditional singing of Christmas Carols for the personnel and customers of the Brooklyn Savings Bank on December 20. In addition to the usual carols, we gave an inspiring Christmas performance entitled, "The First Christmas," a sacred operetta written by Isabel Mason in collaboration with the Sisters of Charity, depicting in five short scenes the "Annunciation," "No Room At the Inn," "The Shepherd of the Fields," "The Nativity" and the "Presentation of the Kings." Next on our agenda was practicing every day to supply the music for the St. Patrick's play, "A Bit O' Blarney."

A small group of altos is often seen practicing during their lunch periods in our school auditorium to improve their voices for harmonizing and to develop better tones. Assisting at the piano is Dor Marrone. The others, left to right, are Ma Achziger, Vita Di Stefano, Marie Brandine and Eugenie Gilbert.

Club

Delightful musical harmony is heard in our school auditorium every Monday and Thursday afternoons from three to four-thirty, as our Glee Club rehearses their many musical selections for the coming events of the year under the direction of Sister John Vianney. On December 20 they performed an operetta, "The First Christmas," for the customers and personnel of the Brooklyn Savings Bank located at Pierpont and Clinton Streets.

The entire Glee Club appears in their beautiful white dresses as they do each year in their annual Spring Concert held in our school auditorium. The concert consists of a performance of all types of music in order to satisfy the preferences of every individual. Seated in front of the club are its efficient officers Eileen Kelly, Librarian; Jane Trousdel, Vice-President; Patricia McGrath, President; and Anna Gonzalez, Librarian.

Orchestra

We are the Music-Makers

To appreciate good music one must love music and to love music one must first learn the fundamentals of the art. Thus, our school orchestra strives to obtain this high goal by making practical use of the talents God has bestowed upon some individuals. Our orchestra does this by presenting its musical selections for the students, parents and friends of St. Joseph's at special occasions.

Every morning in the Little Theater from 8 to 9:45 a group of twenty-two girls begin to practice either under the direction of our conductor, Mr. John Renner or our moderator, Sister John Vianney. We girls of the orchestra could barely read music when we applied for membership. However, we worked hard in order to become one of its permanent members. Every Friday afternoon from two to three o'clock, the new comers are given lessons by their director, Mr. Renner, who trains them for the next season. This past year ten girls were instructed on the fundamentals of the instruments, so that they may take the places of graduating members.

Caroline Festa, a saxophone player and Jeanette Hyer, a trombone player are both members of the Brooklyn Diocesan Orchestra. These girls have sacrificed their Saturday mornings to practice with the Diocesan Orchestra.

During this year our school orchestra displayed its accomplishments at graduation, the meetings of the Mothers' Auxiliary Club, the Irish Show and the annual spring concert.

Some members of our orchestra have found another means by which they could develop their appreciation for music. Standing, Roberta Ross; seated, Frances Innarelli, Loretta Attanasio, Rosemary Vono during their study periods find the time to read such famous musical magazines as "Etude," "Instrumentalist" and "Atlantic" in the quiet of our school library.

Unity Through the Press

This year, more than ever, the primary purpose of the school newspaper has been made plain. With students located in three buildings facing on three different streets, the problem of communication can be best obviated through the medium of the Press. The "Parmentier" is doing a wonderful job of unifying our scattered student body.

Besides, the Journalism Club, which fosters the paper, has definite social aspects. Students who show interest in journalism, and those who possess potential abilities for becoming writers, are invited by the moderator through the English teachers, to join the Journalism Club.

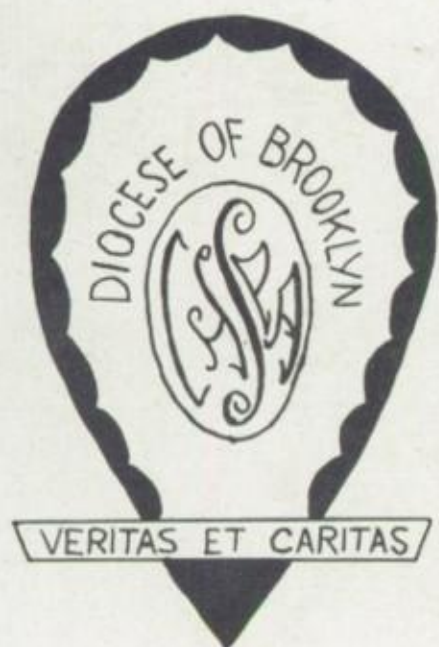

The club is divided into two sections: Senior and Junior members. The Senior members include girls from the second to eighth terms, and Juniors are those girls in their first term. The club meets every Monday afternoon at 3:00, in room 805 in the main building with the Parmentier's managing editor, Helen Loggie presiding. During their meetings, which are separate from the Seniors, the 1A's learn all the phases of high school journalism. The girls receive various assignments, among them the construction of a newspaper. Slowly but surely their knowledge of journalism increases until they are ready to try their skill in some future issues of the Parmentier.

While the Junior tyros are busily learning the A-Z's of journalism, Editor-In-Chief Rose Neuser is busy next door with her staff in 804, collecting assignments, checking copy, and, in general, gathering all the information needed to complete the newspaper.

But there is a fourfold purpose to this club: to develop writing potentialities; to help distinguish between fact and fancy, distortion and truth; to equip our girls with the necessary tools to become good Catholic writers; and to present the Catholic viewpoint. It means further development of their character and good judgement, which is so important to one who intends to become a writer, and to one who intends to deal with the different types of people met in this modern world. Last year's editor, Helen Gonzalez, profiting by her training, won a postgraduate award of $10 for her work on a Diocesan project at the Ninth Annual Award and Exhibit Day of the Catholic High School Press Association in October of this year.

Our Journalism Club plays an important part in preparing our girls to become good citizens and good Catholic writers who can easily take their place with poise and assurance in this tumultuous City of Man.

At the stroke of three, the camera finds the "Parmentier" staff busy deciding what will and what will not appear in the next issue. Standing are: Assoc. Editors Joan Trovato, Carol Weidenschlager; Ed.-in-Chief Rose Neuser; Exc. Ed. Irene Banks. Seated: Exc. Ed. Margaret Guadagno, News Editor Ellen Krumm, Managing Ed. Helen Loggie, Feature Ed. Kathleen Heenan and Ethel Omerza.

The Junior "cubs" receive first hand information on the construction of a newspaper from Editor Rose Neuser. Present are: Lydia Gaglia, Antoinette Fiore, Rose Romeo, Jo Anne Randazzo, Patricia Ennis, Coralie Seidler, Maude Villamagna, Patricia Peiper, Barbara English, Joan Angotti, Mary Fitzpatrick, Patricia Giordano, Marion Muller, Carolyn Sheehan, Elizabeth Lynch, Jean Angello, Concetta Sparano, Mary Ann McPartland, Grace Di Fiore, Virginia Buscema, Carol Peterson, Theresa Sidwalski, Noreen McMahon and Ann De Bella.

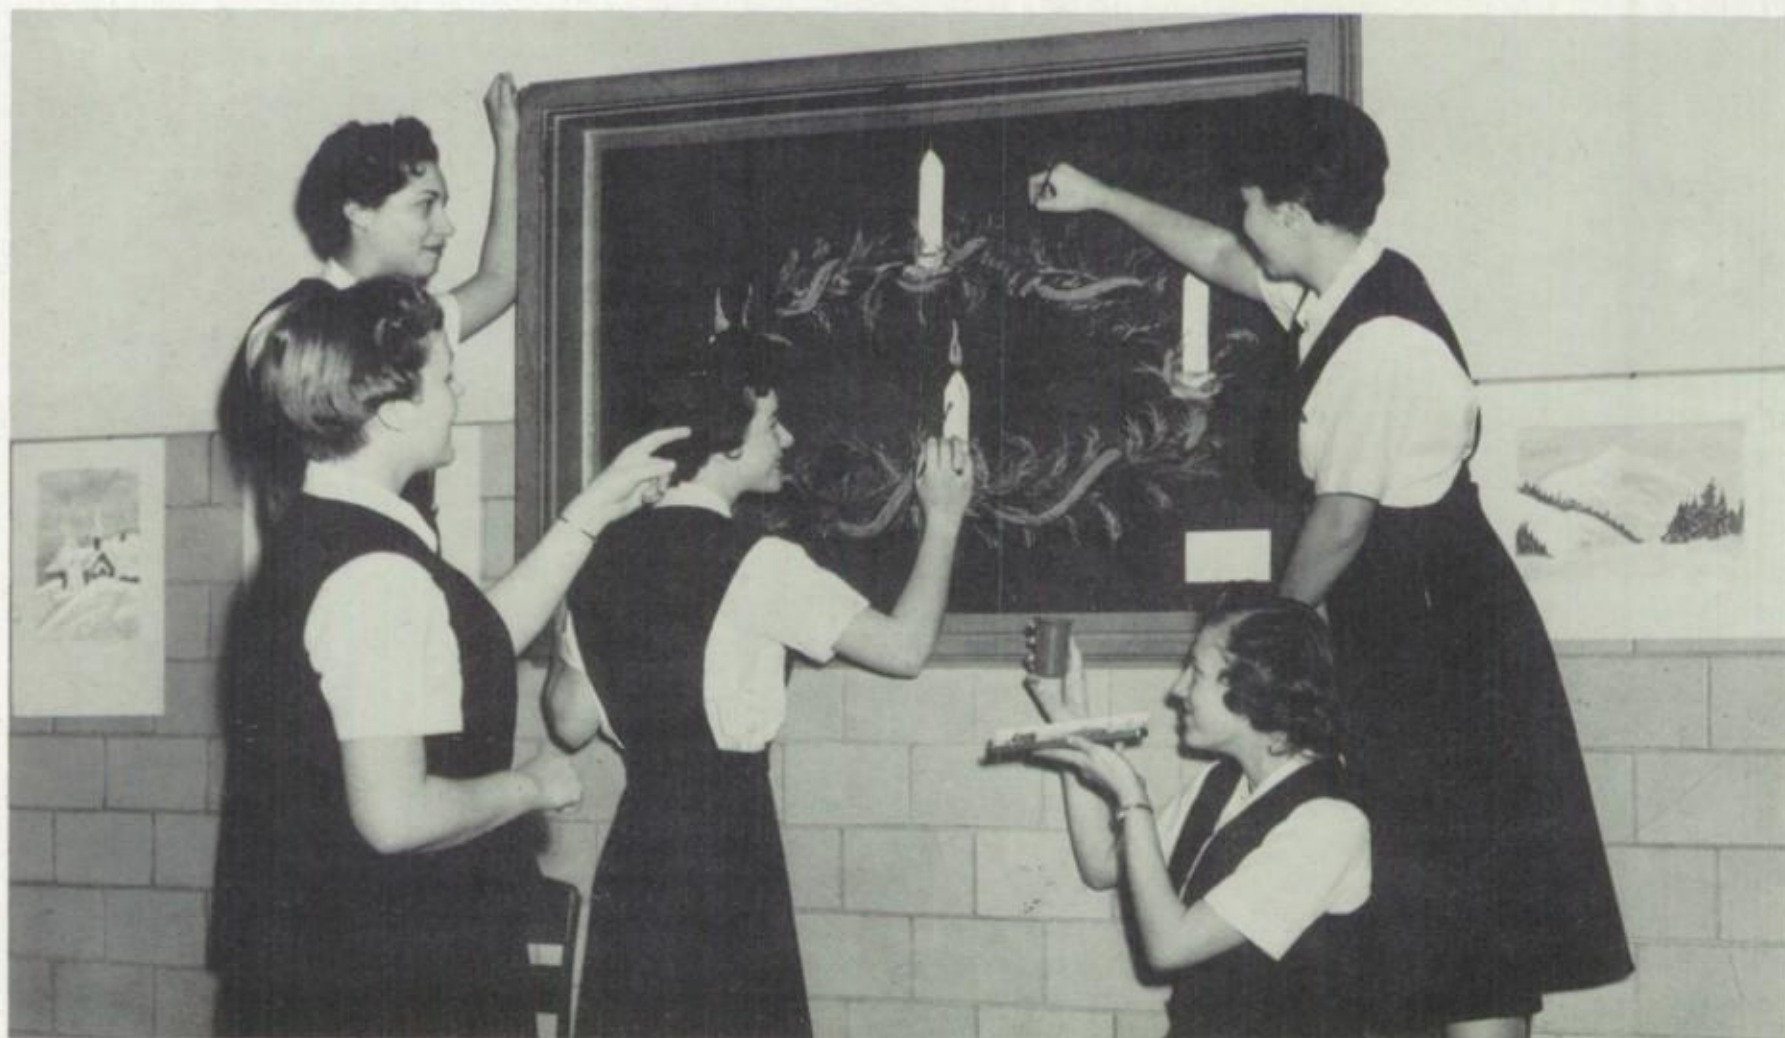

Art Club

Fashioned For Heaven

Since the main objective this past year has been the study of Fashion Designing, the members of the Art Club learn from the professionals by reading popular fashion magazines. Seated at tables from left to right are: Mary Ann Cuillo, Ann Soprano and Catherine Rendisi. Standing are: Anna Enders, Constance Klein, Rosemary Talamo and Barbara McLoughlin. Some of the magazines used are Seventeen, Vogue, McCall's and many others from which the members obtain new ideas in design and fashion.

It is the job of the members of the Art Club to decorate the bulletins of our halls and thus remind us of the spiritual aspect of our everyday living. Marie LoBardo watches Maureen Crowley as she draws one of the candles and Elaine DiBartholomei putting the finishing touches on the leaves which form the wreath. Barbara Kraft gives directions while Ann McDonough holds the paints. The girls are drawing the Advent wreath to remind us that the birth of the Christ Child is not far at hand.

In order that we may attain our heavenly salvation we must use the tools given to us by God. Our Art Club provides an opportunity for the students to fulfill this purpose. Each year the Art Club chooses a theme which directs its activities during the entire school year. This year, fashion designing made up the principal assignments for the work of the Club. The girls studied styles and created original designs. Not only has this given them a chance to express their talents, but it has been reflected in their own choice of clothing. A deeper understanding of fine styles along with their Christian training has set a pattern which will result in a type of clothing which is stylish as well as Catholic.

The Centenary Pageant, in which our school took an active part, put to practical use the study of styles through the years. Since we had students representing various eras between 1856 and 1910, costumes authentic for the period were designed and patterned by the Art Club.

The Art Club has a large membership and fine officers, namely, Joan Marie Hansen, President; Arlene Johnson, Secretary; Antoinette Katra, Treasurer, who faithfully carry out its ideals. These girls have been given a talent by God and He expects them to use it to His greater honor and glory in this world and in the world to come. Each week at their meeting our Art Club works on its theme, creating new ideas and affording its members an opportunity to express their abilities and attain their eternal salvation.

The executing of graceful lines and the blending of color into beautiful shades will not only beautify the city in which these artists dwell but will find reflection in the mansions of the Eternal City hereafter.

The members of the Art Club arrange an attractive display of Christmas wrappings which they have designed. Marlene Clementi and Helene Carpenter tack their design on the bulletin as Catherine Cirrito cuts out ideas from former bulletins as Mary Meyler points to her favorite wrapping. Margaret Gavigan admires the effect.

While Bernadette Lowder helps the President of the Club, Joan Marie Hansen to model an attractive business outfit, a few of the other members make sketches of it. In the first row from left to right are: Carolyn Plausky, May Cirrito and Patricia Piper. In the second row: Kathleen Foley, Louise Picaro, Arlene Johnson and Mae Russo-Alesi. The girls learn to develop ideals of Christianity in dress and designing by practicing and studying under the guidance and care of Sister Marie Jude.

One of the chief concerns of every high school senior is her yearbook. In previous years, she looked upon it with a rather unconcerned indifference, but suddenly it has assumed a position of primary importance. Early in the fall term a few girls specially chosen to represent their classes are introduced to the work involved in preparing and compiling the photography, copy and art work which will become the finished product, the printed yearbook. From the members of this staff, certain girls are appointed editors because of their exceptional social and scholastic ability. This year's officers are: Editor-in-Chief, Camille Giordano; Associate Editor, Helen Donoghue; Photography Editor, Ida Tarallo; Literary Editor, Carol Krumm; Art Editor, Paula Schultz; Senior Class Editor, Elaine Trupia.

This year the PARMENTIER office was moved from its former cramped quarters to Room 301, a large and spacious room. Besides this, the yearbook staff was the recipient of a new bookcase that provides ample storage space for former yearbooks which are kept as references. A large work table has also been added.

After a year of steadfast perseverance and work, the book is given a last study to assure the achievement of its purpose, to present an accurate picture of the year. The present theme purports to show how every graduate of St. Joseph's is prepared for her place in the city of man and in the city of God; its dedication is to the Sisters of St. Joseph, our faithful teachers. We have tried to show the two-fold responsibility facing each girl, and the necessary steps taken here at school to prepare her for it, first as a good Catholic, and subsequently as an exemplary American citizen.

Phyllis Snow, Clare Walsh, Rosemary Shumway, Catherine Toole, and Raphaela Petroccione go to former yearbooks of our own and other schools for ideas to improve the 1956 book. A complete file of PARMENTIER'S for as far back as 1939 are kept in the bookcase in the yearbook office.

The PARMENTIER

... This Is Our Life

Elaine Trupia discusses some layout problems with Camille Giordano, Editor-in-chief, while Helen Donoghue checks a sheet of copy. Under the moderator's direction, the editorial staff is expected to make intelligent decisions regarding all matters concerning the yearbook.

Ida Tarallo, Photography editor, is assisted by Hildegard Matheis as she files each picture to be used in the yearbook. Photography plays an important part in the printing of a good book, and every picture used must be clear and undamaged.

Carol Elberfeld smiles as she points out to one of the seniors a possible solution to their problem, while Carol Krumm, literary editor, looks at the styles of art work in the book shown to her by Paula Schultz. It is necessary for the literary and art staffs to work together closely in order to obtain unity throughout the book.

Kathleen Guinan, Nicoletta Nastro, Josephine Brandine, Carol McDonough, Ellen Motley, Carole O'Brien and Sophie Ucciardi spend their Tuesday afternoons planning layouts and assembling pictures and copy for the yearbook. The work seemed to become harder each week, but when the book was finished, it seemed worth the effort.

Science Club

"The Science Belles" which is the formal name of our school's Science Club has a membership of approximately 135 and holds its meetings on Tuesday for the students in the first year and on Thursday for those in the second, third and fourth years.

During the past year the performance of our school's Science Club has enabled its members to receive a wider scope of scientific knowledge through the use of the microscope, which is necessarily limited in class periods, for the examining of bacteria and other cells and by the performing of experiments with heat and hydrochloric acid.

They have also formulated and painted plaster molds of the leaf, skin, and reflex arc which helps to clearly demonstrate their complete structure. The girls have labeled outline charts for plant study and as a practical asset they have learned to repair broken lamps and frayed iron cords. Frequently the members refer to two books called "Science Magic" and "After Dinner Science" from which they learn many humorous and delightful tricks.

Each year, the moderator of the club, Sister Mary Genevieve makes arrangements to visit some place of scientific value. This year the girls visited the Atomic Plant in Manhattan. There they witnessed the uses of radiation material in medicine and the testing of radiation on plants. Another place of interest the members visited was the Bronx Zoo.

It is the work of the officers of the club, namely, Lucille Scarabino, President; Mary Liberatore, Vice President; Rosemarie Grossheim, Attendance Secretary and Treasurer; and Ellen Clark, Recording Secretary, to obtain a weekly film containing some form of scientific progress. So far they have credited to their experience, films illustrating the uses of nylon and others stressing safety. The girls were delighted with a demonstration given at their December meeting by the Con Edison Company consisting of a lecture on light and color in the home, and two films: THE MAGIC LINK and EAGER MINDS.

Through their interest and exploration in Science the students who actively participate in the club are enabled to see the wonders of God about them. Certainly if He has made this our earthly home so incredibly wonderful how much greater must our heavenly abode be. By studying the scientific developments which have been made up to the present day the student realizes the greatness of his Almighty Creator and the happiness waiting for him in the home of Eternity.

An important experiment of the Club is the test for Chlorine. Mary Ann Patterson and Sarah Principato prepare the chemicals as Joyce Weissmeir and Rosemarie Grossheim pour the hydrochloric acid into the thistle tube. Antoinette Tropani watches the experiment while in the background Rosemarie Guillianio and Patricia Menzies look at the results of their "magic garden" made by placing chemicals into water.

The study of bacteria has always been a source of great interest to scientists. Here studying the movements of bacteria by means of the microscope are left to right: Louise Kishkiel; Lucille Scarabino, President of the Club; Mary Liberatore, Vice President; Ellen Clarke, Recording Secretary; and Marie Tramontana.

Curiosity Fosters Experiment

It is the responsibility of the members of the Science Club to feed and care for the fish in the main Laboratory. Mary Ann Sniechkus holds the top of the tank open while Helen Schilling drops in the feed. Arlene Syers feeds the younger fish which are kept in the smaller tank.

Making plaster molds of the reflex arc and skin was one of the principal projects of the Science Club this year. Jeanette Hyer reads the instructions as Mary McGarrity and Mary Ann Schoenberger start their molds. Theresa Fraulin and Arlene Mazzarana look at the results of the finished mold.

The four bishops representing the cities of Ebensburg, Pennsylvania; Rutland, Vermont; Boston, Massachusetts and Springfield, Massachusetts where the Sisters of St. Joseph founded "daughter communities," await their cue for curtain-call in the Music Hall at Brentwood. They are Raffaella Petroccione, Camille Giordano, Patricia Horn and Marie Pratt.

One of the corridors at St. Joseph's Academy, Brentwood, serves as a miniature stage as Sister Mary Louis (Catherine Hannan) introduces the young applicants to Mother Theresa (Alice Kelly). The girls, (Mary McCann, Eleanor Kaminski, Eileen Kelly and Ellen Colgan) are brushing up on the lines for their scene, "One Second Sunday Afternoon," which portrays a typical Second Sunday, the day set aside by Reverend Mother to interview young ladies interested in becoming postulants.

Little Sylvia Green (Patricia Cottingham) waits patiently, as Mother Theresa (Alice Kelly) comments on her good behavior to her mother, the famed, but miserly financial wizard, Hettie Green (Carol Coyle). In real life Sylvia Green remembered the kindness of the Sisters with a substantial gift of money toward the improvement of the academy.

The Fountain

"The Fountain Out of the Rock," the centennial pageant presented by the Sisters of St. Joseph, portrayed in music, dance, choral speaking, and dramatic dialogue, the overflowing blessings which the congregation has received and channeled to the world since its foundation in 1650 to the children of God in many lands, the Sisters serving individually as hidden stones at the base of the fountain of grace.

The pageant consisted of four units: Prologue ("The Hidden Stream"); Act I ("The Secret of the Source"); Act II ("The Overflowing Fountain"); Epilogue ("For Whom the Fountain Flows"). St. Joseph's had thirty-two girls in the cast of over 500, which represented all 14 high schools taught by the Sisters.

The pageant was presented in the newly decorated auditorium of St. Joseph's Academy, Brentwood, on April 4, and in the beautiful Walt Whit-

With a few minutes to relax before being called on stage, the girls assemble in the classroom-turned-dressing room appointed for our use at St. Joseph's Academy, Brentwood. man Auditorium at Brooklyn College on April 6, 7, and 8. As the audience arrived, tension behind the scenes mounted, but calm amateur actresses appeared before the lights to depict the story of the fountain. All of the 1800 Sisters of St. Joseph heard their pupils tell of the 100 years of glorious labor in the diocese of Brooklyn from the time of the arrival of Mother Austin Kean and her two companions on August 30, 1856.

The Epilogue, entitled "For Whom the Fountain Flows," showed the various fields of the work of the Sisters of St. Joseph. Their fountain, not a material thing, but having a spiritual source, originates in God's city, its graces overflowing into the cities of man. And, to quote the closing words of the Epilogue, "Who will say that anywhere in all the world one soul does not receive of grace—because this fountain flows?"

"Nuns for the day," Hildegard Matheis and Catherine Costello stop before a poster in St. Joseph's Academy, Brentwood, depicting the growth of the community in Brooklyn. The bonnets worn as part of the habit are actual headpieces worn by Sisters of St. Joseph up until 1920.

A colorful spectrum is vividly portrayed as the girls from Queen of All Saints High School represent the colors of the rainbow in the "Fountain out of the Rock." In the foreground offstage are the Fontbonne Hall Glee Club and the orchestra members representing all the high schools taught by the Sisters of St. Joseph. On stage, Bishop Loughlin (Nicoletta Nastro) informs Mother Austin, (Catherine Toole) of the necessity for the young community to move to larger quarters in Flushing.

Dramatics

During rehearsal for the play, the cast looks on as Kathleen Kearney and Margaret Sweeney execute a lively Irish jig. The entire cast practiced every afternoon in the school auditorium for one week prior to the presentation of the play.

"Just a Bit O'

The girls' chorus, composed of the members of the Glee Club, lent their voices to the song and merriment of the evening. Arrayed in bright yellow skirts with green shamrocks and sashes, they sang the songs so dear to everyone, for everyone claims some Irish blood on St. Patrick's Day!

A touch of Ireland becomes apparent in every Josephite whenever March 17 comes around. In order to commemorate the feast of St. Patrick this year, the student body, under the direction of Sister Francis Audrey and Sister John Vianney, presented a two-act musical play by Otis M. Carrington entitled, "Just A Bit O' Blarney." The show was held in DeGray Hall, St. John's University, on the evening of March 12.

The plot concerns itself with a lad and lassie, Patrick and Peggy, who are "smittin'" with each other, but will not admit it. Furthermore, the girls of the village are all angry with Peggy because the boys all "moon" over her and will not pay any attention to them.

In order to set things right, Peggy pretends that she is a doctor and cures the boys of their love sickness. In the meantime, Patrick masquerades as Mike O'Noole's niece, Marjorie. By helping Peggy and Patrick carry out their deception, Mike O'Noole is instrumental in getting the lovers back together again. The play ends on a happy note with the entire cast singing to Peggy, "She's Just A Bit O' Blarney."

Patrick and Peggy are finally reunited through the impish plots of Mike O'Noole who smiles happily as he sees the result of his plans.

During the performance, a group of "colleens" presented an Irish lilt in the traditional style. They are Helen McQuillan, Ann Donnelly, Marie Farnan, Mary Louise Dehney, Mildred Duffek, and Vita Antonelli.

Blarney."

Peggy, masquerading as Doctor Quack, explains her cure to Patrick, who is posing as Marjorie. Mike O'Noole, the little Irishman who instigated the plot, listens happily to the two disguised lovers who are unknown to each other.

These happy couples, Raffaella Petroccione and Anne Naughton, Margaret Powers and Carol Peterson, Jean Morton and Marie DiGregorio, Eugenie Gilbert and Kathleen Kearney, Anna Gonzales and Margaret Sweeney, Irene Purcell and Geraldine Pisklak, Dorothy Marrone and Mary Cox, seem to be in good spirits after being reunited through Peggy's deception.

The Mother's Auxiliary

One of the most popular activities in our school is the Mother's Auxiliary, which is under the direction of Sister Francis Audrey. This social club for the students' mothers holds its meetings on the second Friday of every month.

During this past year the Mother's Auxiliary has done a great deal to help raise money for the new school. Among the events which they sponsored was the annual Card Party and Bunce held in the school auditorium. Besides the social activities of the club, twice a year a Day of Recollection is held. During this time each and every mother is offered the opportunity to gain spiritual strength.

Due to the untiring efforts of its moderator, Sister Dolorine Marie, the Alumnae Association of our school has taken its place as one of the most entertaining as well as useful activities offered to the graduates. Membership begins immediately after graduation and is open to all those who wish to take advantage of its many opportunities.

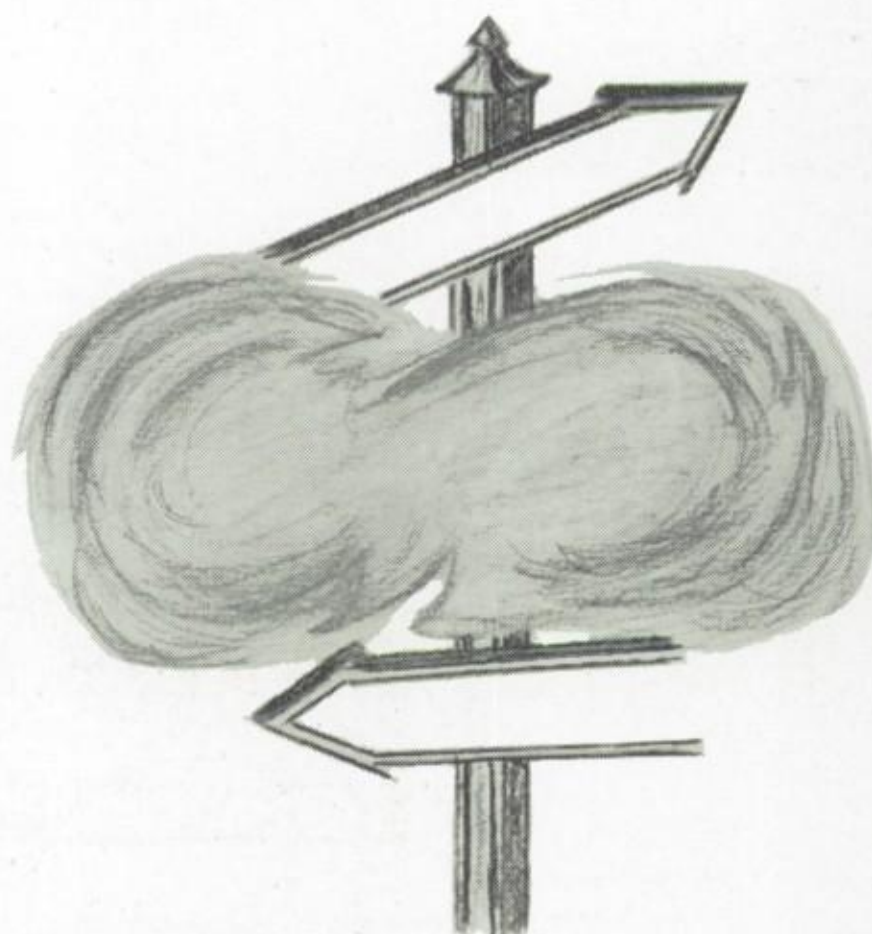

Each year more and more girls return to renew old friendships and to take part in the many activities of the Alumnae Association. Under the leadership of its officers, Ann Marie Roth, President; Grace Calia, Vice-President; Jean Cook, Secretary; the Alumnae has had a very busy and enjoyable season. Among the many events of the past year were the Spring and Fall dances, the Semi-Annual Dinner, the Communion Breakfast, and the annual Christmas party for the underprivileged children of the neighborhood.

The Alumnae Association

Members of the Alumnae apply last minute trimmings to the festive Christmas presents which will be given to the underprivileged children at the annual Christmas party. Here Jean Cook, Ann Marie Roth, Elaine Mashnouk and Mary Ann McCabe seem to be having a good time as they wrap the delightful toys.
